ARRESTED ON BODY EXECUTION

Silverstein Failed to Pay $2,000

Awarded Miss Julia F. Riley for Damages in Automobile Accident.

Isadore Silverstein, formerly of this city, was arrested on Wednesday afternoon at his home on 123rd street, New York city, by Under Sheriff Archie McLaughlin on a body execution obtained by Miss Julia F. Riley, who secured a verdict in supreme court of $2,000 against Silverstein which he never paid. Silverstein was locked up in the county jail.

The case was tried at the October term of supreme court in 1913, and was brought by Miss Riley to recover $5,000 for injuries sustained when she was hit by the automobile of Mr. Silverstein. The accident occurred July 21, 1912, near Maple Hill, on the Rosendale road, about half way between that village and this city. At the time Miss Riley was on her way home to Maple Hill walking on the right side of the road. Near the old Hardenbergh place, the Silverstein automobile came down the hill Miss Riley, who was at the foot of the hill, stepped into the ditch to allow it to pass but the machine struck her and knocked her unconscious. The occupants of the car were also badly hurt when the machine crashed into the stone wall on the side of the road. Meyer Silverstein, the father of Isadore, died from injuries received and the mother was confined to the hospital for a long time. Isadore, who was driving the car, escaped with a bad shaking up. Roscoe Brooks appeared for Miss Riley at the trial and Judge Stephan with Frank Merritt of counsel for Mr. Silverstein.

Shortly after Mrs. Silverstein had recovered her health and was discharged from the hospital she and her son, Isadore, removed to New York, where they have since been living.

ROOSEVELT ILL IN WILDS OF BRAZIL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 30.—A cablegram received today from Col. Theodore Roosevelt states that the ex-president has been ill for several weeks on his exploring trip to Brazil, but is much better now. The cablegram was sent by Col. Roosevelt to his cousin, W. Emlene Roosevelt, 84 Fifth avenue.

The message states that the Roosevelt party has arrived at Manaus, Brazil, 900 miles up the Amazon from the coast, and said that Colonel Roosevelt expected to return in about a month.

The dispatch also contains congratulations for Mr. and Mrs. Richard Derby on the birth of a boy last month. Mrs. Derby was formerly Ethel Roosevelt, the colonel's daughter.

MANZANILLO WAS NOT SHELLED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 30.—"Unfounded. There was an incendiary fire at Manzanillo. We were not even there."

This was Admiral Howard's report to the navy department today relative to the rumor that the Raleigh had shelled Manzanillo.

Washington, April 30.—Official denial of the report that United States warships have shelled Manzanillo on the west coast of Mexico was made at the White House today. Secretary to the President Tumulty said:

"There is absolutely nothing to that story. The Pacific fleet did not fire on Manzanillo nor on any other Mexican town on the west coast. So far as we know the only incident out of the ordinary was an incendiary fire at Manzanillo which probably gave rise to the report that the American ships had fired the town."

Secretary Tumulty also denied the report that American marines have been landed at Salina Cruz.

"No more marines have been landed in Mexico and there is no expectation that any will be landed on the west coast," he said.

1,353 MAJORITY FOR CONVENTION

These results were tabulated today by the state board of canvassers. The question was carried by 153,322 votes as compared with 151,969, nine counties, including New York, Kings, Queens, Richmond, Bronx, Westchester, Erie, Oneida and Hamilton, casting 97,274, against 40,309 votes in favor of the proposition. The remaining 53 counties gave a total vote of 56,048 and 111,660 against.

Ulster Park Grange Program.

The Ulster Park Grange, No. 969, of Ulster Park will hold its regular meeting on Friday evening, May 1, at 8 p. m. in Odd Fellows' Hall. Four candidates will receive the third degree, and refreshments will be served. The program for the lecturer's hour is as follows: Music. . . . .Miss Etta House. Reading. . . . .Miss Laura Herring. Paper.—Improved Prospects of Agriculture in New York State. . . . .E. W. Hathaway. Paper.—How Would You Improve Your Home With $100. . . . .Mrs. Alma Terpening. Duet.—Messrs. L. Herring and M. Churchill.

UPTON SINCLAIR GOES TO JAIL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 30.—Upton Sinclair, novelist and Socialist and the four women "Mourning pickets," who were arrested with him for parading in front of the Standard Oil offices at 26 Broadway as a protest against the treatment of coal strikers in Southern Colorado were today found guilty of disorderly conduct by Magistrate Sims and sentenced to spend three days in jail or pay fines of $3 each.

Sinclair and two of the women, Mrs. Donia Leitner and Elizabeth Freeman, the latter an English suffragette refused to pay fines and were locked up.

"I shall go on a hunger strike," cried Sinclair as he was led from the court room. "I don't care whether they carry me out dead or alive, I won't eat."

The other two women paid their fines.

VILLA'S FORCE TO CONTINUE THE WAR

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

El Paso, Texas, April 30.—With General Villa speeding on a special train from Chihuahua to Torreon to inaugurate his campaign against Carranza and Mexico City, Constitutionalists officers in Juarez today refused to state what action would be taken on the plan of the "A. B. C." mediators at Washington to effect an armistice between the Huertistas and Carranzalists.

Villa's action in taking the initiative of the campaign to the southward when it was supposed he was making plans to return to Juarez and spend some time there, caused great surprise among close observers of the Mexican situation here.

His departure was followed a few hours later by General Carranza's announcement that he had accepted mediation.

The opinion was expressed at the Huerta junta here today that great difficulty would be met by the mediators in attempting to secure from Carranza a desire on the part of General Carranza and his advisers to be in control of as much as possible of Mexico when the mediation proceedings actually begin in order that the Constitutionalists may claim greater favor at the hands of the mediators.

It was also pointed out that even if Carranza accepted the armistice plan he might find it "impossible to reach General Villa because of interrupted communication."

NONE FOUND ALIVE IN WRECKED MINE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Eccles, W. Va., April 30.—Government rescue parties equipped with oxygen helmets finally reached the bottom of No. 5, shaft of the New Rivers Collieries Company mine early today and found scores of bodies of miners who perished in Tuesday's explosion disaster. The bodies, piled in heaps at the foot of the shaft, gave mute evidence of how the trapped miners fought for their lives.

Many of the victims were so badly burned that they were unrecognizable. The mining experts, equipped with the latest safety helmets and other rescue devices, stated on their return to the surface that the discovery of bodies at the foot of the shaft left no further hope that any of the 187 men in the mine were alive. It is not believed that any of those in other parts of the workings could have escaped the flames and deadly fumes that followed the explosion.

The work of exploring the mine will be completed by this afternoon. When the news that bodies had been discovered reached the relatives of the miners, there was a great rush toward the mouth of the shaft, but a strong cordon of deputies and special policemen held back the crowd so that the work of the rescuers would not be hindered.

Two carloads of coffins arrived here today for the victims of the disaster. The caskets were immediately unloaded and stacked up in long rows while government rescue crews equipped with oxygen helmets were attempting to penetrate the mine recesses.

Ulster's Baseball Dates.

The Ulster Academy baseball team will celebrate the week end by playing two games, both of which will be played out of town. Friday the team will go to Poughkeepsie where they will play the Poughkeepsie high school team. Ulster has usually been successful in baseball with Poughkeepsie, although hard fought games occur when these two teams come together. Saturday the locals will take the longer trip to Middletown where they will fight hard to wipe out the defeat Ulster suffered in football last fall. Rain, which fell in torrents in the second inning, prevented the conclusion of the Ulster-Catskill game at Catskill Saturday.

MEDIATORS TO MEET IN WASHINGTON

Carranza Will be Represented by

Senor Zubarran, Who is Now on His Way to Washington—Huerta May Send de la Barra.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 30.—Mediation conferences to decide the differences between President Wilson, General Huerta and General Carranza will be held in Washington. It was announced today by the diplomatic representatives from Argentina, Brazil and Chile.

Carranza already has signified his intention of appointing Senor Zubarran, his chief of interior, to represent him. Senor Zubarran is on his way to Washington and upon his arrival is expected to confer with the three Latin-American diplomats composing the board of mediation.

President Wilson, through Secretary of State Bryan also will appoint the representative of the U. S. shortly. John Russell Moore, former counselor of the state department, and John Lind, the president's special envoy to Mexico, who obtained much valuable first hand information during his stay in Vera Cruz, are among those mentioned for this post.

General Huerta has not yet announced whom he will send but it is believed that Francisco de la Barra, formerly a member of the dictator's cabinet, will be selected.

Decision to hold the conference in Washington almost certainly will delay further developments in the Mexican situation for several weeks, but the administration intends to keep the American fleet and the army ready for instant action.

The "A. B. C." mediators today announced that hereafter they would receive the newspaper correspondents at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and 11 in the evening to talk the situation over with them.

This change of sentiment from the strict secrecy of yesterday to the "open door" policy of today, comes it is said, at the instance of President Wilson.

Actual developments in the Mexican situation today were few. The reported sh

ARRESTED ON BODY EXECUTION

Silverstein Failed to Pay $2,000

Awarded Miss Julia F. Riley for Damages in Automobile Accident.

Isadore Silverstein, formerly of this city, was arrested on Wednesday afternoon at his home on 123rd street, New York city, by Under Sheriff Archie McLaughlin on a body execution obtained by Miss Julia F. Riley, who secured a verdict in supreme court of $2,000 against Silverstein which he never paid. Silverstein was locked up in the county jail.

The case was tried at the October term of supreme court in 1913, and was brought by Miss Riley to recover $2,000 for injuries sustained when she was hit by the automobile of Mr. Silverstein. The accident occurred July 21, 1912, near Maple Hill, on the Rosendale road, about half way between that village and this city. At the time Miss Riley was on her way home to Maple Hill walking on the right side of the road. Near the old Hardenbergh place, the Silverstein automobile came down the hill Miss Riley, who was at the foot of the hill, stepped into the ditch to allow it to pass but the machine struck her and knocked her unconscious. The occupants of the car were also badly hurt when the machine crashed into the stone wall on the side of the road. Meyer Silverstein, the father of Isadore, died from injuries received and the mother was confined to the hospital for a long time. Isadore, who was driving the car, escaped with a bad shaking up. Rose & Brooks appeared for Miss Riley at the trial and Judge Stephan with Frank Merritt of counsel for Mr. Silverstein.

Shortly after Mrs. Silverstein had recovered her health and was discharged from the hospital she and her son, Isadore, removed to New York, where they have since been living.

ROOSEVELT ILL IN WILDS OF BRAZIL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 30.—A cablegram received today from Col. Theodore Roosevelt states that the ex-president has been ill for several weeks on his exploring trip to Brazil, but is much better now. The cablegram was sent by Col. Roosevelt to his cousin, W. Emlene Roosevelt, 84 Fifth avenue.

The message states that the Roosevelt party has arrived at Manaus, Brazil, 900 miles up the Amazon from the coast, and said that Colonel Roosevelt expected to return in about a month.

The dispatch also contains congratulations for Mr. and Mrs. Richard Derby on the birth of a boy last month. Mrs. Derby was formerly Ethel Roosevelt, the colonel's daughter.

MANZANILLO WAS NOT SHELLED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 30.—"Unfounded. There was an incendiary fire at Manzanillo. We were not even there."

This was Admiral Howard's reply to the navy department today relative to the rumor that the Raleigh had shelled Manzanillo.

Washington, April 30.—Official denial of the report that United States warships have shelled Manzanillo on the west coast of Mexico was made at the White House today. Secretary to the President Tumulty said:

"There is absolutely nothing to that story. The Pacific fleet did not fire on Manzanillo nor on any other Mexican town on the west coast. So far as we know the only incident out of the ordinary was an incendiary fire at Manzanillo which probably gave rise to the report that the American ships had fired the town."

Secretary Tumulty also denied the report that American marines have been landed at Salina Cruz.

"No more marines have been landed in Mexico and there is no expectation that any will be landed on the west coast," he said.

UPTON SINCLAIR GOES TO JAIL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 30.—Upton Sinclair, novelist and Socialist and the four women "Mourning pickets," who were arrested with him for parading in front of the Standard Oil offices at 26 Broadway as a protest against the treatment of coal strikers in Southern Colorado were today found guilty of disorderly conduct by Magistrate Sims and sentenced to spend three days in jail or pay fines of $3 each.

Sinclair and two of the women, Mrs. Donna Leitner an Elizabeth Freeman, the latter an English suffragette refused to pay fines and were locked up.

"I shall go on a hunger strike," cried Sinclair as he was led from the court room. "I don't care whether they carry me out dead or alive. I won't eat."

The other two women paid their fines.

VILLA'S FORCE TO CONTINUE THE WAR

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

El Paso, Texas, April 30.—With General Villa speeding on a special train from Chihuahua to Torreon to inaugurate his campaign against Saitillo and Mexico City, Constitutionalists officers in Juarez today refused to state what action would be taken on the plan of the "A. B. C." mediators at Washington to effect an armistice between the Huertistas and Carranzalists.

Villa's action in taking the initiative of the campaign to the southward when it was supposed he was making plans to return to Juarez and spend some time there, caused great surprise among close observers of the Mexican situation here. His departure was followed a few hours later by General Carranza's announcement that he had accepted mediation.

The opinion was expressed at the Huerta junta here today that great difficulty would be met by the mediators in attempting to secure from Carranza a desire on the part of General Carranza and his advisers to be in control of as much as possible of Mexico when the mediation proceedings actually begin in order that the Constitutionalists may claim greater favor at the hands of the mediators.

It was also pointed out that even if Carranza accepted the armistice plan he might find it "impossible to reach General Villa because of interrupted communication."

NONE FOUND ALIVE IN WRECKED MINE

Qualified in Part.

She was very literary and he was not. He had spent a harrow evening discussing authors, of whom he knew nothing, and their books, of which he knew less. Presently the maiden asked, archly: "Of course, you've read 'Romeo and Juliet'?" He floundered helplessly for a moment, and then, having a brilliant thought, blurted out: "Yes, I read 'Romeo'!"

Explaining Ezekiel's Vision.

An eastern traveler now announces in all seriousness that Ezekiel's vision of the wheels was probably inspired by a natural phenomenon, such as was seen about 1907 at sunset in Mesopotamia, by Dr. Hume Griffith. The appearance of bright concentric rings, spokes, and wings in the afterglow tallied exactly with the prophet's description, and the time of year was also that referred to by Ezekiel.

Qualified in Part.

She was very literary and he was not. He had spent a harrowing evening discussing authors, of whom he knew nothing, and their books, of which he knew less. Presently the maiden asked, archly: "Of course, you've read 'Romeo and Juliet'?" He floundered helplessly for a moment, and then, having a brilliant thought, blurted out: "Yes, 'I read Romeo!'"

Explaining Ezekiel's Vision.

An eastern traveler now announces in all seriousness that Ezekiel's vision of the wheels was probably inspired by a natural phenomenon, such as was seen about 1907 at sunset in Mesopotamia, by Dr. Hume Griffith. The appearance of bright concentric rings, spokes, and wings in the afterglow tallied exactly with the prophet's description, and the time of year was also that referred to by Ezekiel.

FUEL ECONOMY AUTOMOBILE TEST

Mr. Davis Will See How Far He Can Run His Franklin Car on One Gallon of Gasoline on Friday Afternoon.

As a result of dealers in Franklin automobiles making tests each year of how far a car could be run on a gallon of gasoline, it has been decided to make all of the tests on May 1 this year. In this city William M. Davis of Forsyth & Davis will make the test on Friday afternoon. In order that conditions may be fair, Mr. Davis will drive his car to Stone Ridge, that road having about the average number of hills. As Mr. Davis is not a professional chauffeur, the test will demonstrate what can be done by the ordinary automobile owner on the ordinary road and unless the weather improves, under adverse weather conditions. Mr. Davis will be accompanied by Mayor Canfield and J. E. Klock, who will certify to the results. In preliminary trials Mr. Davis has run his Franklin car 33.6 miles. In Minneapolis a record of 47.8 miles has been made and in New Haven a record of 46 miles on one gallon of gasoline, but this was on level roads and under favorable weather conditions.

The practical side of the test is quite apparent as all the cars are in daily use and will be tested in normal conditions in all parts of the country. It will be a case of the cars speaking for themselves and showing what each can do. This test marks the first great mile post in practical automobile efficiency trials. It will secure facts and figures from a thoroughly practical and fair standpoint. This is clearly shown by the rules of the test, which are as follows:

1. The test must be made by a Franklin Six-Thirty touring car on Friday morning, May 1.
2. Only one gallon of gasoline must be used. This to be carried in a one-gallon can attached to the side lamp bracket, and the regular gasoline tank disconnected. A gallon measure, which has been certified by the local sealer of weights and measures, to be used to measure the gasoline.
3. No matter what the weather or road conditions are the test must be made on this day.
4. Each car in the test must carry as passengers two observers who will be absolutely impartial and whose supervision will be considered as official as far as possible.
5. The most important consideration is absolutely accuracy in every detail.
6. The actual mileage secured must be certified to by both driver and observers before a notary public.

Settled by Competent Authority.

The town board of Rhinebeck has put the ban on the tango.—Kingston Freeman.

Too long the fate of modern dance has in the balance hung, Now is at last the tango doomed. Now is its death-knell rung.

Close up the joyous cabaret, And bid it's glories die, New York must never sanction aught That Rhinebeck would deary.

The mighty wave of dance reform Which swept the country o'er Has spent its force and broken now Upon the Rhinebeck shore.

Then flash the news to Germany And cable it to France,— The village board of Rhinebeck Has condemned the modern dance.

In vain the Astor wedding bells Ring gaily overhead, The world is steeped in deepest gloom, The joy of life is dead, Martha S. Chandler.

Atwood Farm Sold.

Peter A. Guttormson, of West Hoboken, N. J., has purchased through the brokerage of Coutant and Davis, the well-known old homestead, known as the George Jansen farm, located at Atwood, town of Marlborough. This farm consists of 128 acres, through which flows one of the finest and most reliable trout streams in the county, and is one of the principal tributaries of the Esopus, known as the Gladst Clift Kill upon which the farms of the valley will depend for water, after the gates of the big dam are closed. Mr. Guttormson takes possession today.

Tramps Rounded Up.

The police made a round-up of tramps on Wednesday and brought five of the knights of the road to jail. The officers who descended on the 2000 camps were Policemen Hess, Charles Murphy, Dan, Hooley and Kuehn. Two were found near the Blinewater Lake Ice Company's ice house on South Pine street and three more were found in the north yard. This morning Recorder Grogan gave them warning to get out of town and stay out or they would do time.

Progress On High School.

Henry McNamee of Paddyville, who had the contract to remove the rock from the new high school site on Broadway, completed his work on Wednesday afternoon and is removing his plant. The L. F. Bannan Company has about completed laying a sewer and water connection from the main on more brick-layers are at work and the foundations are looming up in fine shape.

Carp Fishing Is Good.

Fishermen from Rhinebeck are bringing in plenty of live carp to the local dealers. Wednesday night Rhinebeck fishermen out for shad were disappointed, getting but four in their drifts, but found they had about fifty carp. They were kept alive and brought here this morning, making a snug boat full which were quickly brought.

FUEL ECONOMY AUTOMOBILE TEST

Mr. Davis Will See How Far He Can Run His Franklin Car on One Gallon of Gasoline on Friday Afternoon.

As a result of dealers in Franklin automobiles making tests each year of how far a car could be run on a gallon of gasoline, it has been decided to make all of the tests on May 1 this year. In this city William M. Davis of Forsyth & Davis will make the test on Friday afternoon. In order that conditions may be fair, Mr. Davis will drive his car to Stone Ridge, that road having about the average number of hills. As Mr. Davis is not a professional chauffeur, the test will demonstrate what can be done by the ordinary automobile owner on the ordinary road and under the weather improves, under adverse weather conditions. Mr. Davis will be accompanied by Mayor Canfield and J. E. Klock, who will certify to the results. In preliminary trials Mr. Davis has run his Franklin car 33.6 miles. In Minneapolis a record of 47.8 miles has been made and in New Haven a record of 45 miles on one gallon of gasoline, but this was on level roads and under favorable weather conditions.

The practical side of the test is quite apparent as all the cars are in daily use and will be tested in normal conditions in all parts of the country. It will be a case of the cars speaking for themselves and showing what each can do. This test marks the first great mile post in practical automobile efficiency trials. It will secure facts and figures from a thoroughly practical and fair standpoint. This is clearly shown by the rules of the test, which are as follows:

1. The test must be made by a Franklin Six-Thirty touring car on Friday morning, May 1.

2. Only one gallon of gasoline must be used. This to be carried in a one-gallon can attached to the side lamp bracket, and the regular gasoline tank disconnected. A gallon measure, which has been certified by the local sealer of weights and measures, to be used to measure the gasoline.

3. No matter what the weather or road conditions are the test must be made on this day.

4. Each car in the test must carry as passengers two observers who will be absolutely impartial and whose supervision will be considered as official as far as possible.

5. The most important consideration is absolutely accuracy in every detail.

6. The actual mileage secured must be certified to by both driver and observers before a notary public.

Settled by Competent Authority.

The town board of Rhinebeck has put the ban on the tango.—Kingston Freeman.

Too long the tale of modern dance has in the balance hung, Now is at last the tango doomed, Now is its death-knell rung.

Close up the joyous cabaret, And bid it's glories die, New York must never sanction aught That Rhinebeck would decri.

The mighty wave of dance reform Which swept the country o'er Has spent its force and broken now Upon the Rhinebeck shore.

Then flash the news to Germany And cable it to France,— The village board of Rhinebeck Has condemned the modern dance.

In vain the Astor wedding bells Ring gaily overhead, The world is steeped in deepest gloom, The joy of life is dead, Martha S. Chandler.

Atwood Farm Sold.

Peter A. Guttmerson, of West Hoboken, N. J., has purchased through the brokerage of Coutant and Davis, the well-known old home-stand, known as the George Jansen farm, located at Atwood, town of Marlborough. This farm consists of 128 acres, through which flows one of the finest and most reliable trout streams in the county, and is one of the principal tributaries of the Esopus, known as the Ghildt Kill upon which the farms of the valley will depend for water, after the gates of the big dam are closed. Mr. Guttmerson takes possession today.

Tramps Rounded Up.

The police made a round-up of tramps on Wednesday and brought five of the knights of the road to jail. The officers who descended on the 70th camp were Policemen Hess, Charles Murphy, Daun, Healey and Kuehn. Two were found near the Binnewater Lake Ice Company's ice house on South Pine street and three more were found in the north yard. This morning Recorder Grogan gave them warning to get out of town and stay out or they would do time.

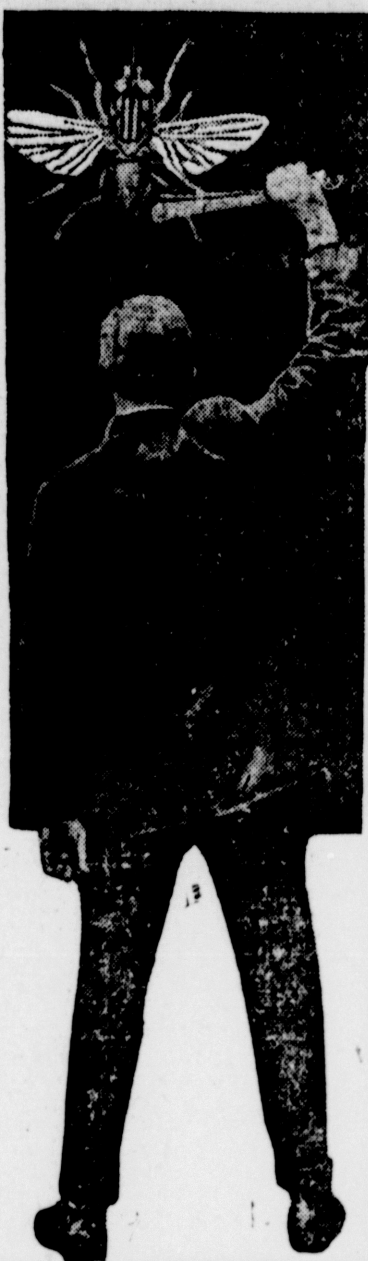

Progress On High School.

Henry McNamee of Eddyville, who had the contract to remove the rock from the new high school site on Broadway, completed his work on Wednesday afternoon and is removing his plant. The L. F. Bannan Company has about completed laying a sewer and water connection from the main on Broadway to the building. A dozen or more bricklayers are at work and the foundations are looming up in fine shape.

Carp Fishing Is Good.

Fishermen from Rhinebeck are bringing in plenty of live carp to the local dealers. Wednesday night Rhinebeck fishermen out for shad were disappointed, getting but four in their drifts, but found they had about fifty carp. They were kept alive and brought here this morning, making a snug boat full which were quickly brought.

A TEXT FOR LADY ORATORS.

During the next few days this city is to be enlivened by speeches in favor of votes for women. It is with some trepidation that we venture to suggest to the lady orators that they refrain from going over, parrot-like, the familiar theoretical arguments on the subject and specialize upon the practical aspects of the issue. It is folly to speculate regarding what the result of equal suffrage in New York or any other manhood suffrage State would be when one can just as well point out the results in States where the experiment has actually been tried.

Women have voted in Colorado for the last twenty-one years, and by this time their influence ought to be felt if it is ever going to be. Just what that influence amounts to has been made apparent in the news from Colorado during the last year. The State has been the stamping ground of armed ruffians. It is not so surprising to read of arson and murder by ignorant strikers who do not understand our language and institutions, but this riff-raff has not acted much more abominably than the State militia, recruited from the best native families. Women and children have been butchered without mercy. No respect has been shown to sex or age. The people of the whole State seem to have relaxed into savagery. Elections are a farce, according to a statement made by Representative Keating of Colorado on the floor of Congress Wednesday. Mr. Keating asserted that in certain counties of the State Mr. Rockefeller and his associates "have owned every public official for the last ten years."

There are about 215,000 women voters in Colorado. In the last Presidential election exactly 266,372 votes were cast. It is clear that the women can effect any reform they please if they will go to the polls and vote right. Why don't they do it? Before New York gives votes to women it wants to know what they will do with the privilege and what reason, if any, there is to suppose that they will do better than the women of Colorado.

The fact has been disclosed that Huerta asked the Japanese Government to look after Mexican interests in the United States during the period of trouble, but met with refusal, after which he applied to Spain for that favor, which was granted. This incident should silence the fools of the Hobson type who are obsessed by the idea that Japan is waiting for a chance to pick a quarrel with the United States. On the contrary, that nation seems determined to avoid every possibility of misunderstanding, even going almost to the point of rudeness in refusing an ordinary diplomatic request. All the nations are sick of war, no matter what the jingoes say, and there will be no more armed conflicts except such as arise accidentally from the blundering of grape-juice statesmen.

No public appointment could give more satisfaction to the people of Kingston city and Ulster county than the appointment announced Wednesday of Benjamin M. Brink as custodian of the Senate House in this city. Mr. Brink is the third custodian the Senate House has had since it was purchased by the state of New York for preservation because of its historical importance. The first custodian was the Hon. Marius Schoonmaker, author of the "History of Kingston," and a recognized authority on historical subjects. He was succeeded by his son, Julius Schoonmaker, whose recent death removed one of the most noted antiquarians in this section of the state, to whom the curator of more than one state and national institution and museum appealed for information not otherwise obtainable. Mr. Brink for many years has been an authority on all historical matters relating to New York state, and is the author of the "History of Saugerties," and editor of "Old Ulster," an historical and genealogical magazine now in the tenth year of its publication. "Old Ulster" is a treasure chest of valuable historical facts and documents which up to that time were unpublished and unobtainable for publication. Mr. Brink's constant aim has been to present the historical matters relating to Ulster county as it exists today and of the surrounding territory formerly comprised within its boundaries with truth and absolute accuracy, and his work is of unusual value to the student of history because he has unsparingly used the scalpel to separate legend from fact and to present the truth with legendary imaginings wholly eliminated as truth but presented separately in its own light as legend. In public life it is not always that the right man is selected for appointment. In Mr. Brink's case, the right man has been selected, without the slightest effort on his part, but in response to the demand of scores of prominent men of this city whose requests on his behalf were without solicitation but came spontaneously because their writers recognized fully the eternal fitness of things.

A BIT OF ADVICE.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

At a time when most of us are fairly longing to spend days upon days where we may "look into the fair and open face of Heaven," and "breathe a smile full in the face of the blue firmament," it seems a bit untimely to call attention to an article in the current issue of the New York "Medical Journal," attacking the sleeping porch and the cold morning plunge. But as Dr. A. Morgan Mac Whinnie has chosen this season to denounce them as passing fads of a particularly harmful nature, one can only repeat his warnings, which are the more impressive because one has observed that it is not always the sturdiest, the most healthful folk who follow the cult of fresh air and cold water to the point of faddism. If it were, one might cheerfully tear out the whole roar of the house and leave it open to the nice, frigid currents of mid-winter. And, though one shivered and rebelled at the ice, one might break it, as some zealous folk do, in order to obtain the invigorating plunge in the morning. Because genuine aristocracy of health is as beautiful as rare and one gladly would suffer a few discomforts to achieve it.

But half, if not more, of the earnest extremists who sleep on unsheltered piazzas, or as a compromise, in rooms where the "cauld blast" sifts through without any hindrance and who plunge in water that is next door to ice,—why, they have colds in their heads, rheumatism and corresponding ills of the flesh. And it sometimes seems that they have more troubles than the moderate ones who take their ozone in as big drafts as advisable, and their plunges in kind, but who remember to be sane in the doing.

But Dr. MacWhinnie—

He says it must be remembered that the human body is a piece of mechanism which will stand so much and no more. Cold plunge faddists may feel invigorated for a while, just as others do by the morning glass of whiskey but there would be mighty change of sentiment, he declares, if they could measure the shock and realize the extra work imposed by the over-stimulation. Hot and cold, cold and hot—after that comes the depression.

It is not strange he writes, that we see so many nervous systems wrecked for the internal organs were not planned for the continual resistance of shocks, and while some may stand the process for a while and may enjoy the overstimulation, in the end they pay for the strain.

And as to fresh air:

Plenty of it, yes, but sleeping in the open air under the conditions generally followed should be vigorously condemned, he tells us. Whenever the forces of the body must be strained to resist chill, the result is weakness not strength, loss not gain.

And, the doctor and his science apart most of us who sleep with windows well-opened, know that at times when the thermometer unexpectedly sinks lower and lower in the night, we lie with faces turned to the icy breezes, not quite cold enough to be driven to seek extra coverlets or to lower the windows just a bit, but consciously fighting to keep warm. And we are unpleasantly aware that our forces are badly over-strained, instead of being quietly at rest; aware, too, that after a night of discomfort like that, we are not at our best the next day.

Which does not mean, even in our humble lay-opinion, that when the big frosts come we should return to the old unwholesome days of closed windows—not at all; but that we should stop this side of discomfort and the physical depression of which the discomfort warns.

And if inclined to dispute the doctor's advice it might be enlightening to look around rather questioningly just for ourselves. If the look reveals continuously strengthened physical resources among the folk who sleep out of doors, or as near it as may be, and who dip deep down in the icy water of a morning, then extremists let us be. But if we find them very susceptible to colds, to rheumatism and the like, we better bear in mind the doctor's caution that there is such a thing as shocking the human system altogether too much, and that much of vitality is lost through the very effort to resist the undue cold.

In all such matters there's a pleasant, half-way house, and generally the flag of health is found to be flying there.

And if the doctor's advice seems out of season now, there's another winter coming, when it may be well for the most pronounced of all the faddists to recall the warning that when the forces of the body are given over-much to resist, they rebel in the end.

No Mercenary Lover.

"Sir," said the young man with much respect, "I know that you are a millionaire, and that I am poor. It seems presumptuous in me to aspire to the hand of your daughter. But I have thought the matter out, and with some diffidence I have resolved to make my request. Love, sir, is not bound by sordid considerations or by mere social convenience. I have a very real attachment for your daughter and I pray that you will put no obstacle in the way of our early marriage."

The old man seemed interested in the young fellow, and inclined to listen. "Quite so," said he. "As you know, I am not in the habit of sticking at trifles, providing the main purpose is straight. But which of my girls do you want?"

The young man breathed a sigh of relief, and courteously replied "Oh, I'll leave that to you, sir."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Had Been Strictly Fresh.

There was no doubt about it—he was very angry when he entered the village grocery store and demanded to see the proprietor.

"You sold my wife some eggs yesterday, Mr. Peavey," he said, when the grocer appeared.

"Wa-al, yes," said Mr. Peavey, generally.

"And you told her that they were fresh eggs," continued the visitor.

"Wa-al, yes, it seems to me I did," said Mr. Peavey.

"But, see here, Mr. Peavey; you had no business to say they were fresh eggs!"

"Why not? I bought 'em fresh from St. Wiley, too."

"I don't believe it. St. Wiley's an honest man."

"Wa-al, St. Wiley, all right. He came in here with his basket full of 'em and put 'em on the counter and traded 'em off for a box of sody biscuits."

"When was this?"

"Oh, I dunno. 'Bout six weeks ago, I guess."—Neward Star.

Not an Octet.

Cyril Maude, the English comedian, was talking about class distinctions.

"They are less marked with you than with us," he said. "Here you all talk alike—the shop girl's accent differs in no wise from that of a Stuyvesant or a Roosevelt. But, with us, the lower classes talk a disgraceful jargon."

"The 'h' especially! The lower classes can never master that 'h'. In my youth I once heard a stage manager rehearsing 'Faust.' He had sprung from the people, poor chap, and he conducted the rehearsals like this:

"'Old your 'ands on your 'ips, 'old up your 'eads, and look 'aughty. You're not on 'Amptstead Park now—you're in 'Ade's. Now, 'astin 'off—'urriedly, with a look of 'ate.'"

"But, sir," said I, "there's only six of us."—New York Herald.

A Humble Joker.

"Humphry Ward, the husband of the well known novelist, likes to joke about his nonentity."

The speaker was a New York magazine editor.

"Humphry Ward, they tell me," the editor went on, "once entered his wife's study while she was out, and glanced over the manuscript upon her writing desk."

"He read the sentence: 'She swept the room with a bright fresh glance,' and, taking up a pencil, he wrote on the margin of the page, 'If she would only sweep the room with a bright, fresh broom!'"

"Reading on, he came to, 'She touched a button and a footman appeared.' His marginal note to this was, 'Alas, she will never touch a button!'"

"And now he came upon the sentence, 'She decided to mend her ways.' And again he wrote, 'Hopeless. She'll never mend anything!'"

—New York Times.

ASTOR WEDDING AT STAATSBURG TODAY

Simple Ceremony at Home of the Bride Attended by Only a Few Intimate Friends of the Young People.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., April 30.—William Vincent Astor, son of the late Colonel John Jacob Astor, and heir to the bulk of the $87,000,000 Astor estate, and Helen Dinsmore Huntington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Palmer Huntington, were married today by the Rev. C. H. Duncan in a simple ceremony at Hopeland House, Staatsburg, the home of the bride's parents.

The original wedding plans called for a wedding in the Church of St. Margaret, of which the Rev. Mr. Duncan is rector, with 250 spectators. But the recent grave illness of Mr. Astor caused the change in the arrangements.

The beautiful home of the Huntingtons, which stands on the famous Dinsmore estate six miles from Ferncliff, the Astor country home, was a bower of flowers. The festoons and buds were almost entirely from the famous conservatories of Mrs. William B. Dinsmore, mother of Mrs. Huntington. Her home is a short distance from Hopeland House.

The few out of the great number of friends of the young couple who were invited made up in distinction what was lacking in numbers.

Miss Huntington's only attendant was her sister, Miss Alice Huntington, the maid of honor. Mr. Astor was accompanied to the altar by his best man, Hermann Oelrichs, the boyhood friend with whom he spent many happy days tinkering with engines, batteries and machinery.

The tall fair-haired girl, who henceforth is to be "The" Mrs. Astor, made a graceful bride. On her entrance there was a rustling of gowns and a polite craning of necks. Low exclamations or approval were heard as she was seen.

Mr. Astor, more than six feet tall, slender, and showing the effect of the successive illnesses through which he had recently passed, bore a grave and courtly part in the scene. A flicker of a smile passed across his cheeks as he met his bride.

The wedding service was short. After it there was a reception, which was less formal than most such society functions, and a wedding breakfast.

The guests, from New York for the most part, had come up to Staatsburg by a special train this morning. It was a jolly party, bent on making a holiday of the wedding of two most popular young persons. There were several card games, and much laughter and skylarking.

Arriving at the railroad station, they found a great crowd of the country folk gathered to see and hear the wedding. The Astor, Dinsmore and Huntington families are greatly liked by those living in the neighborhood of their large country estates and the members of younger generations are especial favorites because Vincent is the patron of baseball and other boy activities and Helen has often entertained companies of the young daughters of neighboring families at her stately home.

Prominent in the wedding party was Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, mother of the bridegroom, and first wife of the late Col. John Jacob Astor. She was once known as the most aristocratic beautiful woman in New York society, and her appearance today drew much envious comment from other society dames of like age. She was very happy today. Her joy in her son was obvious to all who watched her.

Another person at the wedding who was generally noticed was Mr. Astor's friend, George C. Douglas, of Minneapolis, Minn., one of the ushers. Douglas, father of Walter E. Douglas, perished with Col. Astor aboard the Titanic two years ago. The two young men met and became fast friends during the sad time when they awaited on the pier at Halifax the arrival of their fathers' bodies.

There was a special feeling of jubilation among the guests, many commented, because the wedded couple were considered to be so exquisitely suited to each other. Both have the same love of out-of-doors, and the same dislike of social sham and the same serious, active high-minded attitude toward life. The bride is twenty-one years old and her husband about a year older.

Mr. and Mrs. Astor have arranged to spend part of their honeymoon touring Europe. They will meet Mr. Astor's yacht, the Noma, which has just been refitted, in European waters and will not return to the United States until next autumn. They will spend most of their time at Ferncliff. They will also have homes in Newport and New York, and perhaps in Virginia, on the James river. Mr. Astor, according to the gossip among the guests today will do a deal of experiment farming when not engaged with Manhattan real estate or politics.

Helen Dinsmore Huntington Astor, is now the mistress of the house of Astor, taking precedence over both Mrs. John (Ava Willing) Astor, first wife of the late Colonel John Jacob Astor, and Mrs. John Jacob (Madeleine Fome) Astor, the Titanic victim's young widow.

She is scarcely more than a school girl, a winsome, bright-eyed young American, who has spent most of her life on the sunny banks of the Hudson. It is said that she has made her husband promise that they will live mostly in the beautiful Rhinebeck district.

Mrs. Astor's father, Robert Palmer Huntington, the architect, comes of a family which has been prominent in New York society for several generations and which is one of the oldest in Kentucky. Her mother was Helen Gray Dinsmore, daughter of the late William B. Dinsmore, Jr., of New York, who married Miss Helen F. Adams, of Cambridge, Mass., whose father was the founder of the Adams Express Company.

The great-grandparents of Mrs.

Astor, the late Mr. and Mrs. William B. Dinsmore, lived at 302 Fifth avenue, New York, and at the Locusts, their splendid country place in Staatsburg. Mr. Dinsmore was for many years president of the Adams Express Company. He was famous in his day as a collector of paintings. The Locusts is an estate of 1,100 acres extending to the banks of the Hudson. Unlike the other estates in that section, Hopeland House, where Mrs. Astor's parents reside, is built on the Dinsmore estate.

Mrs. Astor was introduced to society a little more than two years ago. She has been seen at many New York winter functions, but cares more for out-of-door life.

When the subject of the plans for today's wedding was broached in a family conference, Mr. Astor balked at walking up the aisle of the church. Miss Huntington, too, didn't care particularly for this. She asked for a quiet little house wedding with only some thirty relatives of both families present. Her father and mother only won her over to a church wedding by convincing her, a more modest affair would take away pleasure from hundreds of friends who were looking forward to the event.

Mrs. Astor is an excellent musician, but her especial joys are tennis, golfing, powerboating, motoring and iceboating.

William Vincent Astor, (he drops the William usually), is twenty-two years old, and head of the Astor estate. His fortune has recently been estimated at $87,000,000. He is an active real estate operator, erecting many fine loft buildings and apartment houses.

He is rapidly taking a place in the life of New York city more prominent than has been assumed by any member of his family since the death of the original John Jacob Astor. He is especially interested in social movements and in politics.

The bridegroom of today is the fifth in the line of the shrewd fur trader who founded the family fortune. His father was the late Colonel John Jacob Astor and his mother was Ava F. Willing, of Philadelphia. Colonel Astor's father was William Astor, and his father, William B. Astor, was the son of the first John Jacob.

Vincent was born in the mansion of his grandfather at Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, where the Waldorf-Astoria now stands. He was delicate in his boyhood, but his preference for open-air life has done much for him. Despite his handicaps in body he progressed with his studies and was at Harvard when the Titanic sank. This ended his schooling. He took the vast responsibility of the Astor estates very seriously and decided he must devote his entire time to it.

He would have been a model youth had it not been for a passion for automobiles. He smoked only three cigars a day and drank scarcely at all. But he was repeatedly in motor car crashes. Recently he purchased a hydro-aeroplane, towed it to Ferncliff, and was only prevented from using it by the earnest persuasions of that little group of elderly advisers who have guided him so felicitously since the death of his father.

He purchased a prize-winning automobile of Caleb Bragg and he owns a swift hydroplane. He also likes tennis.

Life his father, Vincent is entertained by popular forms of amusements such as musical comedies. He is a great first nighter. Last November, Mr. Astor and his fiancée motored over to Poughkeepsie from Staatsburg and went to a five cent moving picture show. The feature was "His Hour of Triumph," and in front of the theatre hung a big banner showing a picture of a wedding in society.

Of late Mr. Astor has been very active in New York movements. He has become interested in the police department and has put up prizes for the boys athletes of the public schools. He plunged into the last municipal campaign as an adherent of John Purroy Mitchel, having a desk assigned to him and undoubtedly doing a great deal to assure the success of the Fusionists.

In social movements he has often been in conference with far older men, who found in him a quiet but capable man of ideas with whom they liked to work. He is one of several multi-millionaires who have commented systemtically back-fires against the loan sharks of the country. When a large savings bank recently was the object of a senseless run he offered the president the use of large funds to pay importunate depositors.

Mrs. William B. Dinsmore, grandmother of today's bride, said recently of the first meeting of Mr. and Mrs. Astor.

"When Helen was five years old Mrs. Huntington gave a birthday party for her at Hopeland House. She invited Vincent. I remember it well. He wore a white sailor suit and he presented Helen with a big bouquet of white roses, almost as large as himself. He was then only six years old."

Pigs on Shipboard.

The killing of a pig at sea is always an occasion of much interest, not only for the reason that fresh meat is to be enjoyed—a great luxury on a sailing ship after perhaps months of salt provisions—but because what is termed a "pig breeze" or favorable wind may be looked upon as a certainty. Pigs when kept on sailing ships are often let out of their pens, and their movements, which are believed to foretell the state of the wind to be expected, are watched with keen interest.

Points for Mothers

The First Teeth.

The moment a spot of decay appears upon a tooth—no matter how young the child may be—that decayed spot should be removed and the hole stopped by a dentist.

If this is not done the decay will quite certainly spread and probably destroy several teeth.

Don't imagine that because they are "only the first set" these teeth do not matter. The first set matters very much. If any of the teeth in decay fall out too soon the jaw doesn't have the same chance to expand as it would do if the teeth lasted their full time and fell out naturally when the second ones came up under them.

Then, again, many mothers have an idea that the molars (the big back grinding teeth), which appear at the age of about six, are some of the first set and don't need any special attention if they show signs of decay. They are not. They are some of the second set—the permanent set—and if they decay and have to come out they will never be replaced. If the decay spots in the first set are neglected they will very likely infect these permanent teeth.

When Baby Can Use His Teeth.

Most year-old babies can eat a tiny piece of bread and butter. Some forward mites try to use their teeth even earlier. Cut the bread and butter into small squares and remove the crust to prevent their choking. The bread must not be less than twenty-four hours old. Rub the butter well into it; this makes it more digestible than merely spreading it. When twelve months old the average child may begin to drink from a cup, and gradual weaning from the bottle should then commence. But should any wilful rogue seriously resent the new way of feeding and stubbornly cling to his old friend, the bottle, indulge him for a time. Babies will be babies and have their little fads. Why not? We grown-ups have. Take away the bottle and probably a large proportion of the daily milk will be given up. The little ones should have at least two pints per day.

Unwise Punishments.

Corporal punishment can never do the average child good—never do anything, in fact, except break its spirit and make it timid and shrinking. Blows do not even quiet the little ones effectually, for the slap or box on the ear naturally results in noisy weeping, which in its turn mothers try to quell by another slap. If corporal punishment is necessary, and in some few cases it is—let it be short and sharp, but while it lasts, but quickly over. Just as constant nagging is so much more harmful than an occasional angry outburst, so the system of slapping a child twenty times a day is far worse than caning it once in two or three months.

For Ricketty Babies.

If mothers realized the virtue there is in warm soft water and pure soap there would be fewer puny babies. When the little one is inclined to rickets give it two baths a day. In the morning bath dissolve a gill of sea salt. A bran bath is excellent at night. Put one pound of bran in a loose tin cotton bag. Soak it in the bath water for half an hour while it is getting warm. Squeeze it and keep it in the water during the bath. Put a drop of atar of roses in four ounces of olive oil and rub baby with it five minutes after his evening tub. This is soothing and nutritive for a delicate child.

To Cure Nail Biting.

If a child has formed the habit of biting its nails keep the nails very short. Explain to him how ugly his hands will become and that nail biting is a vulgar habit. At six years a child is quite old enough to understand. Give him a little manicure set and teach him how to use them. The difficulty is he will probably continue to bite the nails through forgetfulness. To quicken the memory put bitter aloes on the finger tips.

Personal Tidiness.

Teach children right from the very first that nothing that needs mending must be put on till the mending has been done, and you will have no trouble to keep them tidy.

"I started this plan," said a model mother, "and taught the children to do their own mending as soon as ever they were big enough to sew, and I think it would be hard to find children who are more particular in this way."

Treating Ringworm.

Ringworm is sometimes developed by delicate children. It is caused by the presence of a vegetable parasite. Give a child so afflicted extract of malt and cod liver oil. To apply locally mix one dram of salicylic acid with one ounce of petroleum jelly and rub well into the affected parts.

Give Baby a Drink.

Many mothers never think of giving baby a drink of water. Often when it frets and whines it is just thirsty. If food is given every time there is restlessness the little stomach becomes overloaded and great discomfort follows. Milk is a food, not merely a drink.

Mending a Broken Vase.

A beautiful little white vase was broken in many places. After putting it together carefully, the owner knotted green raffia about it and it was very pretty still. The idea will apply to many chipped and cracked pieces of pottery.

A TEXT FOR LADY ORATORS.

During the next few days this city is to be enlivened by speeches in favor of votes for women. It is with some trepidation that we venture to suggest to the lady orators that they refrain from going over, parrot-like, the familiar theoretical arguments on the subject and specialize upon the practical aspects of the issue. It is folly to speculate regarding what the result of equal suffrage in New York or any other manhood suffrage State would be when one can just as well point out the results in States where the experiment has actually been tried.

Women have voted in Colorado for the last twenty-one years, and by this time their influence ought to be felt if it is ever going to be. Just what that influence amounts to has been made apparent in the news from Colorado during the last year. The State has been the stamping ground of armed ruffians. It is not so surprising to read of arson and murder by ignorant strikers who do not understand our language and institutions, but this rift-riff has not acted much more abominably than the State militia, recruited from the best native families. Women and children have been butchered without mercy. No respect has been shown to sex or age. The people of the whole State seem to have relaxed into savagery. Elections are a farce, according to a statement made by Representative Keating of Colorado on the floor of Congress Wednesday. Mr. Keating asserted that in certain counties of the State Mr. Rockefeller and his associates "have owned every public official for the last ten years."

There are about 215,000 women voters in Colorado. In the last Presidential election exactly 266,372 votes were cast. It is clear that the women can effect any reform they please if they will but go to the polls and vote right. Why don't they do it? Before New York gives votes to women it wants to know what they will do with the privilege and what reason, if any, there is to suppose that they will do better than the women of Colorado.

The fact has been disclosed that Huerta asked the Japanese Government to look after Mexican interests in the United States during the period of trouble, but met with refusal, after which he applied to Spain for that favor, which was granted. This incident should silence the fools of the Hobson type who are obsessed by the idea that Japan is waiting for a chance to pick a quarrel with the United States. On the contrary, that nation seems determined to avoid every possibility of misunderstanding, even refusing almost to the point of rudeness in refusing an ordinary diplomatic request. All the nations are sick of war, no matter what the jingoes say, and there will be no more armed conflicts except such as arise accidentally from the blundering of grape-juice statesmen.

No public appointment could give more satisfaction to the people of Kingston city and Ulster county than the appointment announced Wednesday of Benjamin M. Brink as custodian of the Senate House in this city. Mr. Brink is the third custodian the Senate House has had since it was purchased by the state of New York for preservation because of its historical importance. The first custodian was the Hon. Marius Schoonmaker, author of the "History of Kingston," and a recognized authority on historical subjects. He was succeeded by his son, Julius Schoonmaker, whose recent death removed one of the most noted antiquarians in this section of the state, to whom the curator of more than one state and national institution and museum appealed for information not otherwise obtainable. Mr. Brink for many years has been an authority on all historical matters relating to New York state, and is the author of the "History of Saugerties," and editor of "Old Ulster," an historical and antiquarian magazine now in the press and to be published.

"Old Ulster" is a treasure chest of valuable historical facts and documents which have long been unpublished and inaccessible for publication. Its constant aim has been to present the historical matters relating to Ulster county as it exists today and of the surrounding territory formerly comprised within its boundaries with truth and absolute accuracy, and his work is of unusual value to the student of history because he has unsparingly used the scalpel to separate legend from fact and to present the truth with legendary imaginings wholly eliminated as truth but presented separately in its own light as legend. In public life it is not always that the right man is selected for appointment. In Mr. Brink's case, the right man has been selected, without the slightest effort on his part, but in response to the demand of scores of prominent men of this city whose requests on his behalf were without solicitation but came spontaneously because their writers recognized fully the eternal fitness of things.

A BIT OF ADVICE.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

At a time when most of us are fairly longing to spend days upon days where we may "look into the fair and open face of Heaven," and "breathe a smile full in the face of the blue firmament," it seems a bit untimely to call attention to an article in the current issue of the New York "Medical Journal," attacking the sleeping porch and the cold morning plunge. But as Dr. A. Morgan Mac Whinnie has chosen this season to denounce them as passing fads of a particularly harmful nature, one can only repeat his warnings, which are the more impressive because one has observed that it is not always the sturdiest, the most healthful folk who follow the cult of fresh air and cold water to the point of faddism. If it were, one might cheerfully tear out the whole rear of the house and leave it open to the nice, frigid currents of mid-winter. And, though one shivered and rebelled at the ice, one might break it, as some zealous folk do, in order to obtain the invigorating plunge in the morning. Because genuine aristocracy of health is as beautiful as rare and one gladly would suffer a few discomforts to achieve it.

But half, if not more, of the earnest extremists who sleep on unsheltered piazzas, or as a compromise, in rooms where the "cauld blast" sifts through without any hindrance and who plunge in water that is next door to ice, why, they have colds in their heads, rheumatism and corresponding ills of the flesh. And it sometimes seems that they have more troubles than the moderate ones who take their ozone in as big drafts as advisable, and their plunges in kind, but who remember to be sane in the doing.

But Dr. MacWhinnie—

He says it must be remembered that the human body is a piece of mechanism which will stand so much and no more. Cold plunge faddists may feel invigorated for a while, just as others do by the morning glass of whiskey but there would be mighty change of sentiment, he declares, if they could measure the shock and realize the extra work imposed by the over-stimulation. Hot and cold, cold and hot—after that comes the depression.

It is not strange he writes, that we see so many nervous systems wrecked for the internal organs were not planned for the continual resistance of shocks, and while some may stand the process for a while and may enjoy the overstimulation, in the end they pay for the strain.

And as to fresh air:

Plenty of it, yes, but sleeping in the open air under the conditions generally followed should be vigorously condemned, he tells us. Whenever the forces of the body must be strained to resist chill, the result is weakness not strength, loss not gain. And, the doctor and his science apart most of us who sleep with windows well-opened, know that at times when the thermometer unexpectedly sinks lower and lower in the night, we lie with face turned to the icy breezes, not quite cold enough to be driven to seek extra coverlets or to lower the windows just a bit, but consciously fighting to keep warm. And we are unpleasantly aware that our forces are badly over-strained, instead of being quietly at rest; aware, too, that after a night of discomfort like that, we are not at our best the next day.

Which does not mean, even in our humble lay-opinion, that when the big frosts come we should return to the old unwholesome days of closed windows—not at all; but that we should stop this side of discomfort and the physical depression of which the discomfort warns.

And if inclined to dispute the doctor's advice it might be enlightening to look around rather questioningly just for ourselves. If the look reveals continuously strengthened physical resources among the folk who sleep out of doors, or as near it as may be, and who dip deep down in the icy water of a morning, then extremists let us be. But if we find them very susceptible to colds, to rheumatism and the like, we better bear in mind the doctor's caution that there is such a thing as shocking the human system altogether too much, and that much of vitality is lost through the very effort to resist the undue cold.

In all such matters there's a pleasant, half-way house, and generally the flag of health is found to be flying there.

And if the doctor's advice seems out of season now, there's another winter coming, when it may be well for the most pronounced of all the faddists to recall the warning that when the forces of the body are given over-much to resist, they rebel in the end.

No Mercenary Lover.

"Sir," said the young man with much respect, "I know that you are a millionaire, and that I am poor. It seems presumptuous in me to aspire to the hand of your daughter. But I have thought the matter out, and with some diffidence I have resolved to make my request. Love, sir, is not bound by sordid considerations or by mere social convenience. I have a very real attachment for your daughter and I pray that you will put no obstacle in the way of our early marriage."

The old man seemed interested in the young fellow, and inclined to listen. "Quite so," said he. "As you know, I am not in the habit of sticking at trifles, providing the main purpose is straight. But which of my girls do you want?"

The young man breathed a sigh of relief, and courteously replied "Oh, I'll leave that to you, sir."—Fall Mail Gazette.

Had Been Strictly Fresh.

There was no doubt about it—he was very angry when he entered the village grocery store and demanded to see the proprietor.

"You sold my wife some eggs yesterday, Mr. Peavey," he said, when the grocer appeared.

"Wa-al, yes," said Mr. Peavey, genially. "Believe I did."

"And you told her that they were fresh eggs," continued the visitor.

"Wa-al, yes; it seems to me I did," said Mr. Peavey.

"But, see here, Mr. Peavey; you had no business to say they were fresh eggs!"

"Why not? I bought 'em fresh from St. Wiley, too."

"I don't believe it. St. Wiley's an honest man."

"Wa-al, St. Wiley said it, all right. He came in here with his basket full of 'em and put 'em on the counter and traded 'em off for a box of sody biscuits."

"When was this?"

"Oh, I dunno. 'Bout six weeks ago, I guess."—New York Star.

Not an Octet.

Cyril Maude, the English comedian, was talking about class distinctions.

"They are less marked with you than with us," he said. "Here you all talk alike—the shop girl's accent differs in no wise from that of a Stuvessant or a Roosevelt. But, with us, the lower classes talk a disgraceful jargon."

"The 'h' especially! The lower classes can never master that 'h.' In my youth I once heard a stage manager rehearsing 'Faust.' He had sprung from the people, poor chap, and he conducted the rehearsals like this:

"'Old your 'ands on your 'ips, 'old up your 'eads, and look 'aughty. You're not on 'Amptstead Rath, now—you're in 'Ades. Now, 'astin' off 'urriedly, with a look of 'ate.'"

"But, sir," said I, "there's only six of us."—New York Herald.

A Humble Joker.

"Humphrey Ward, the husband of the well known novelist, likes to joke about his nonentity."

The speaker was a New York magazine editor.

"Humphrey Ward, they tell me," the editor went on, "once entered his wife's study while she was out, and glanced over the manuscript upon her writing desk."

"He read the sentence: 'She swept the room with a bright fresh glance,' and, taking up a pencil, he wrote on the margin of the page, 'If she would only sweep the room with a bright, fresh broom!'"

"Reading on, he came to, 'She touched a button and a footman appeared.' His marginal note to this was, 'Alas, she will never touch a button!'"

"And now he came upon the sentence, 'She decided to mend her ways.' And again he wrote, 'Hopeless. She'll never mend anything!'"

ASTOR WEDDING AT STAATSBURG TODAY

Simple Ceremony at Home of the Bride Attended by Only a Few Intimate Friends of the Young People.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Poughkeepsie, N. Y., April 30.—William Vincent Astor, son of the late Colonel John Jacob Astor, and heir to the bulk of the $87,000,000 Astor estate, and Helen Dinmore Huntington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Palmer Huntington, were married today by the Rev. C. H. Duncan in a simple ceremony at Hopeland House, Staatsburg, the home of the bride's parents.

The original wedding plans called for a wedding in the Church of St. Margaret, of which the Rev. Mr. Duncan is rector, with 250 spectators. But the recent grave illness of Mr. Astor caused the change in the arrangements.

The beautiful home of the Huntingtons, which stands on the famous Dinmore estate six miles from Poughkeepsie, the Astor country home, was a bower of flowers. The festoons and buds were almost entirely from the famous conservatories of Mrs. William B. Dinmore, mother of Mrs. Huntington. Her home is a short distance from Hopeland House.

The few out of the great number of friends of the young couple who were invited made up in distinction what was lacking in numbers.

Miss Huntington's only attendant was her sister, Miss Alice Huntington, the maid of honor. Mr. Astor was accompanied to the altar by his best man, Hermann Oelrichs, the boyhood friend with whom he spent many happy days tinkering with engines, batteries and machinery.

The tall fair-haired girl, who henceforth is to be "The" Mrs. Astor, made a graceful bride. On her gown and a polka craning of necks. Low exclamations of approval were heard as she was seen.

Mr. Astor, more than six feet tall, slender, and showing the effect of the successive illnesses through which he had recently passed, bore a grave and courtly part in the scene. A flicker of a smile passed across his cheeks as he met his bride.

The wedding service was short. After it there was a reception, which was formal than most such society functions, and a wedding breakfast.

The guests, from New York for the most part, had come up to Staatsburg on a special train this morning. It was a jolly party, bent on making a holiday out of the wedding of two most popular young persons. There were several card games, and much laughter and skylarking.

Arriving at the railroad station, they found a great crowd of the country folk gathered to see and hear the bride. The Astor family are greatly liked by those living in the neighborhood of their large country estates and the members of younger generations are especial favorites because Vincent is the patron of baseball and other boy activities and Helen has often entertained companies of the young daughters of neighboring families at her stately home.

Prominent in the wedding party was Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, mother of the bridegroom, and first wife of the late Col. John Jacob Astor. She was once known as the most aristocratically beautiful woman in New York society, and her appearance today drew much envious comment from other society dames of like age. She was very happy today. Her joy in her son was obvious to all who watched her.

Another person at the wedding who was generally noticed was Mr. Astor's friend, George C. Douglas, of Minneapolis, Minn., one of the ushers. Mr. Douglas's father, Walter E. Douglas, perished with Col. Astor aboard the Titanic two years ago. The two young men met and became fast friends during the sad time when they awaited on the pier at Halifax the arrival of their fathers' bodies.

There was a special feeling of jubilation among the guests, many commented, because the wedded couple were considered to be so exquisitely suited to each other. Both have the same love of out-of-doors, the same dislike of social shams and the same serious, active high-minded attitude toward life. The bride is twenty-one years old and her husband about a year older.

Mr. and Mrs. Astor have arranged to spend part of their honeymoon touring Europe. They will meet Mr. Astor's yacht, the Nomad, which has just been refitted, in European waters and will not return to the United States until next autumn. They will spend most of their time at Farncliffe. They will also have homes in Newport and New York, and perhaps in Virginia, on the James river. Mr. Astor, according to the gossip among the guests today will do a deal of experiment farming when not engaged with Manhattan real estate or politics.

Helen Dinmore Huntington Astor is now the mistress of the house of Astor, taking precedence over both Mrs. John (Ava Willing) Astor, first wife of the late Colonel John Jacob Astor, and Mrs. John Jacob (Madeline Fosse) Astor, the Titanic victim's young widow.

She is scarcely more than a school girl, a winsome, bright-eyed young American, who has spent most of her life on the sunny banks of the Hudson. It is said that she has made her husband promise that they will live mostly in the beautiful Rhinebeck district.

Mrs. Astor's father, Robert Palmer Huntington, the architect, comes of a family which has been prominent in New York society for several generations and which is one of the oldest in Kentucky. Her mother was Helen Gray Dinmore, daughter of the late William B. Dinmore, Jr., of New York, who married Miss Helen F. Adams, of Cambridge, Mass., whose father was the founder of the Adams Express Company.

The great-grandparents of Mrs.

Astor, the late Mr. and Mrs. William B. Dinmore, lived at 205 Fifth avenue, New York, and at the Locusts, their splendid place in Staatsburg. Mr. Dinmore was for many years president of the Adams Express Company. He was famous in his day as a collector of paintings. The Locusts is an estate of 1,100 acres extending to the banks of the Hudson. Unlike the other estates in that section, Hopeland House, where Mrs. Astor's parents reside, is built on the Dinmore estate.

Mrs. Astor was introduced to society a little more than two years ago. She has been seen at many New York winter functions, but cares more for out-of-door life.

When the subject of the plans for today's wedding was broached in a family conference, Mr. Astor balked at walking up the aisle of the church. Miss Huntington, too, didn't care particularly for this. She asked for a quiet little house wedding with only some thirty relatives of both families present. Her father and mother only won her over to a church wedding by convincing her a more modest affair would take away pleasure from hundreds of friends who were looking forward to the event.

Mrs. Astor is an excellent musician, but her special joys are tennis, golfing, powerboating, motoring and iceboating.

William Vincent Astor, (he drops the William usually), is twenty-two years old, and head of the Astor estate. His fortune has recently been estimated at $87,000,000. He is an active real estate operator, erecting many fine loft buildings and apartment houses.

He is rapidly taking a place in the life of New York city more prominent than has been assumed by any member of his family since the death of the original John Jacob Astor. He is especially interested in social movements and in politics.

The bridegroom of today is the fifth in the line of the shrewd frugal trader who founded the family fortune. His father was the late Colonel John Jacob Astor and his mother was Ava F. Willing, of Philadelphia. Colonel Astor's father was William Astor, and his father, William B. Astor, was the son of the first John Jacob.

Vincent was born in the mansion of his grandfather at Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, where the Waldorf-Astoria now stands. He was delicate in his boyhood, but his preference for open-air life has done much for him. Despite his handicaps in body he progressed with his studies and was at Harvard when the Titanic sank. This ended his schooling. He took the vast responsibilities of the Astor estate very seriously and decided he must devote his entire time to it.

He would have been a model youth had it not been for a passion for automobiles. He smoked only three cigars a day and drank scarcely at all. But he was repeatedly in motor car crashes. Recently he purchased a hydro-aeroplane, towed it to Farncliffe, and was only prevented from using it by the earnest persuasions of that little group of elderly advisers who have guided him so felicitously since the death of his father.

He purchased a prize-winning automobile of Caleb Bragg and he owns a swift hydroplane. He also likes tennis.

Life his father, Vincent is entertained by popular forms of amusements, such as musical comedies. He is a great first nighter. Last November, Mr. Astor and his fiancée motored over to Poughkeepsie from Staatsburg and went to a five cent moving picture show. The feature was "His Hour of Triumph," and in front of the theater hung a big banner showing a picture of a wedding in society.

Of late Mr. Astor has been very active in New York movements. He has become interested in the police department and has put up prizes for the boy athletes of the public schools. He plunged into the last municipal campaign as an adherent of John Purroy Mitchell, having a desk assigned to him and undoubtedly doing a great deal to assure the success of the Fusionists.

In social movements he has often been in conference with far older men, who found in him a quiet but capable man of ideas with whom they liked to work. He is one of several multi-millionaires who have commenced systematic back-fire against the loan sharks of the country. When a large savings bank recently was the object of a senseless run he offered the president the use of large funds to pay importunate depositors.

Mrs. William B. Dinmore, grandmother of today's bride, said recently of the first meeting of Mr. and Mrs. Astor.

"When Helen was five years old Mrs. Huntington gave a birthday party for her at her town house. She invited Vincent. I remember it well. He wore a white sailor suit and he presented Helen with a big bouquet of white roses, almost as large as himself. He was then only six years old."

Pigs on Shipboard.

The killing of a pig at sea is always an occasion of much interest, not only for the reason that fresh meat is to be enjoyed—a great luxury on a sailing ship after perhaps months of salt provisions—but because what is termed a "pig breeze" or favorable wind may be looked upon as a certainty. Pigs when kept on sailing ships are often let out of their pens, and their movements, which are believed to forecast the state of the wind to be expected, are watched with keen interest.

Points for Mothers

The First Teeth.
The moment a spot of decay appears upon a tooth—no matter how young the child may be—that decayed spot should be removed and the hole stopped by a dentist.

If this is not done the decay will quite certainly spread and probably destroy several teeth.

Don't imagine that because they are "only the first set" these teeth do not matter. The first set matters very much. If any of the teeth in decay and fall out too soon the jaw doesn't have the same chance to expand as it would do if the teeth lasted their full time and fell out naturally when the second ones came up under them.

Then, again, many mothers have an idea that the molar (the big back grinding teeth), which appear at the age of about six, are some of the first set and don't need any special attention if they show signs of decay. They are not. They are some of the second set—the permanent set—and if they decay and have to come out they will never be replaced. If the decay spots in the first set are neglected they will very likely infect these permanent teeth.

When Baby Can Use His Teeth.

Meet year-old babies can eat a tiny piece of bread and butter. Some forward mites try to use their teeth even earlier. Out the bread and butter into small squares and remove the crust to prevent their choking. The bread must not be less than twenty-four hours old. Rub the butter well into it; this makes it more digestible than merely spreading it. When twelve months old the average child may begin to drink from a cup, and gradual weaning from the bottle should then commence. But should any wilful rogue seriously resent the new way of feeding and stubbornly cling to his old friend, the bottle, indulge him for a time. Babies will be babies and have their little fads. Why not? We grown-ups have. Take away the bottle and probably a large proportion of the daily milk will be given up. The little ones should have at least two pints per day.

Unwise Punishments.

Corporal punishment can never do the average child good—never do anything, in fact, except break its spirit and make it timid and shrinking. Blows do not even quiet the little ones effectually, for the slap or box on the ear naturally results in noisy weeping, which in its turn mothers try to quell by another slap. If corporal punishment is necessary, and in some few cases it is—let it be short and sharp, but while it lasts, but quickly over. Just as constant nagging is so much more harmful than an occasional angry outburst, so the system of slapping a child twenty times a day is far worse than caning it once in two or three months.

For Rickety Babies.

If mothers realized the virtue there is in warm soft water and pure soap there would be fewer puny babies. When the little one is inclined to rickets give it two baths a day. In the morning bath dissolve a gill of sea salt. A bran bath is excellent at night. Put one pound of bran in a loose thin cotton bag. Soak it in the bath water for half an hour while it is getting warm. Squeeze it and keep it in the water during the bath. Put a drop of attar of roses in four ounces of olive oil and rub baby with it five minutes after his evening tub. This is soothing and nutritive for a delicate child.

To Cure Nail Biting.

If a child has formed the habit of biting its nails keep the nails very short. Explain to him how ugly his hands will become and that nail biting is a vulgar habit. At six years a child is quite old enough to understand. Give him a little manure set and teach him how to use them. The difficulty is he will probably continue to bite the nails through forgetfulness. To quicken the memory put bitter aloes on the finger tips.

Personal Tidiness.

Teach children right from the very first that nothing that needs mending must be put on till the mending has been done, and you will have no trouble to keep them tidy.

"I started this plan," said a model mother, "and taught the children to do their own mending as soon as ever they were big enough to sew, and I think it would be hard to find children who are more particular in this way."

Treating Ringworm.

Ringworm is sometimes developed by delicate children. It is caused by the presence of a vegetable parasite. Give a child so afflicted extract of malt and codliver oil. To apply locally mix one dram of salicylic acid with one ounce of petroleum jelly and rub well into the affected parts.

Give Baby a Drink.

Many mothers never think of giving baby a drink of water. Often when it frets and whines it is just thirsty. If food is given every time there is restlessness the little stomach becomes overloaded and great discomfort follows. Milk is a food, not merely a drink.

Mending a Broken Vase.

A beautiful little white vase was broken in many places. After putting it together carefully, the owner knotted green raffia about it and it was pretty still. The idea will apply to many chipped and cracked pieces of pottery.

REO THE FIFTH A Super Car, $1,175

Some Reo Tests

No other car builder insists on tests as extreme as does R. E. Olds.

One whole building in the Reo plant is devoted to tests and inspections.

Here is a 35-horsepower car, yet every driving part is tested for 50-horsepower requirements. In every part which meets a strain there are very large margins of safety.

Gears are tested in a 50-ton crushing machine. Springs are tested for 100,000 vibrations. Engines get five long and radical tests, then are taken apart and inspected.

Steel is twice analyzed. Every part and device must prove itself under heavy overtax. And six weeks are spent on each car.

Test cars are run for 10,000 miles to prove out the strength and endurance. They are run night and day on rough roads. Then the tested car is taken apart, and the requirement is that all important parts shall come through almost new.

It Endures

The result is a car that stays new. It saves trouble, upkeep and repairs. In the years to come you will find that it pays to own a super-car. Ask any of the tens of thousands who are driving Olds-built cars.

A Lower Price

This year brings a lower price—$220 less than last year with electric starter. It brings the new streamline body, making a beautiful car. It brings dimming searchlights, over-size tires, one-rod control, and many new ideas in equipment.

You will find here the best-built car and the handsomest car ever sold at a modest price. It is so great a value that the spring demand is always twice the factory output.

MILITARY CONTROL AT VERA CRUZ

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Vera Cruz, April 30.—Brig. Gen. Frederick Funston, commander of the Fifth Infantry brigade of the United States army, today took over supreme command of the American army of occupation and assumed the title of military governor of Vera Cruz.

Brig. Gen. Funston relieved Rear Admiral F. F. Fletcher, who has been in command of the United States forces and shore operations since the American marines seized Vera Cruz last week.

The transfer of shore duty from the bluejackets and marines to the combined forces of marines and soldiers took place today, the infantrymen taking up the task of policing the city and upholding the authority of the civil government appointed by Admiral Fletcher.

The sailors were returned to the American warships, taking their light artillery and machine guns with them. Gen. Funston announced that he would follow the plans of Admiral Fletcher throughout except where new conditions arose and made it impossible.

Marines and soldiers are co-operating in guarding the western outskirts of the west city. Side by side the khaki clad men of the sea—soldiers and sailors too, as Kipling called them—and the khaki clad men of the land are extending trenches and piling up barricades of sand filled bags on the northwestern and southwestern limits to prevent any surprise attack. Enforcements are also being thrown up along the railroad tracks to prevent the Federals from trying to run by with armored troop trains.

Elaborate ceremonies were arranged to mark the turning over of control of the city by Admiral Fletcher's forces to those of Gen. Funston. These included an exchange of courtesies between representatives of the army and navy forces in the presence of the staffs of Admiral Fletcher and Gen. Funston and a salute. Orders were given for three lines of soldiers, blue jackets and marines to be drawn up along the wharf and marines and regimental bands were early on the scene playing a diversified program of music.

For purposes of defense and administration the city has been divided into three sections by the naval and military authorities. The marines are to occupy and defend the northern part. The Fourth Infantry will have charge of the center and the Seventh Infantry will guard the southern and southwestern part.

The Twenty-eighth and Nineteenth regiments will watch the harbor front and act as a reserve force. When the soldiers and marines took up their stations on the outposts they saw that if even there was no fighting, their job was not going to be a snap. The plains which stretch between the city and the barren hills are of sand upon which nothing grows but spiny cactus. At night a raw fog, which speaks of malaria and ague covers the sand. In the day-time the tropical sun heats it until it burns. It is not a hard firm sand but is loose and shifts and when one walks in it, he sinks over his shoe-tops.

Of course, there is no fresh water to be had upon this desert waste so all the water for drinking and bathing purposes must be carried by hand to the outposts.

Army kitchens and bakeries have been established and the savory odors therefrom fall with tantalizing succulence upon the noses of the half starved Mexicans who hover about.

Everything is in working order, the landing of the infantry forces and the establishment of their camp being carried out without a hitch.

There are now about 10,000 American soldiers and marines on shore guarding Vera Cruz from bullets and disease. The sanitary corps has established rigid rules to keep up the good health of the Fifth brigade for it has just come from one of the most squalid army posts in the United States. Mexicans for the first time in their lives have been stopped from throwing their garbage in the gutters and with looks of wonder upon their faces they are asking why. They find their answer in the healthy, stalwart boys in blue who are in charge of things.

The American troops have behaved admirably in every way. But two cases of intoxication have been reported. The soldiers have acted with the greatest consideration toward Mexican non-combatants. During the heat of the fighting the strict punctilio of discipline was slightly overlooked and some of the machine gun operators in the thick of the bullets calmly smoked big black cigars while they worked the levers which rained lead against the Mexican barricades. Now the reins have tightened.

Quoth Tagore.

Do you know whence comes the sleep that floats over the eyes of a child? Yes. They'll us it has its home in the fairy village in the shadow of the forest. It is just faintly lighted by glowworms and two sensitive magic powers grow in it. Smiles come from the spot to kiss the eyelids of children.—Rabindranath Tagore.

Quoth Tagore.

Do you know whence comes the sleep that floats over the eyes of a child? Yes. They lie in its home in the fairy village in the shadow of the forest. It is just faintly lighted by the swarms and two sensitive magic powers grow in it. Smiles come from the spot to kiss the eyelids of children.—Rabindranath Tagore.

FERTILIZING PRODUCT WASTED

Only 25 Per Cent of Country Tankage Is Available.

Seventy-five per cent of a highly valuable fertilizing material in the form of tankage and blood from the country slaughter of food animals is being wasted throughout the country districts. In addition, $22,000,000 worth of ammonia, from which ammonium sulphate, another valuable fertilizing material, could be made, is annually wasted by the practice of making coke in the beehive type of oven, according to a recent bulletin of the department of agriculture.

Tankage, a product of slaughter houses, consisting of such waste material as bones, horns, hoofs, etc., contains a large percentage of nitrogen and other products used in commercial fertilizer and in the larger packing houses is carefully saved. In country killing, however, only 25 per cent of the tankage and blood is saved for fertilizer. The nitrogen content of tankage is said to vary from 5 to 8 per cent and its phosphoric acid content between 5 and 12 per cent.

Dried blood is perhaps the richest in nitrogen of all the organic materials used in the fertilizing industries. Undiluted blood when quite dry contains 14 per cent of nitrogen, but as obtained on the market its content varies from 9 to 13 per cent.

From the figures estimated by the bureau of animal industry, department of agriculture, as representing the total slaughter of cattle, calves, swine and sheep in the United States in 1912 it has been calculated that if all the materials rendered available by this slaughter had been saved and converted into tankage and dried blood they would have produced 22,585 tons of tankage and 79,794 tons of dried blood.

The introduction of a co-operative system among American farmers undoubtedly would result in an increased utilization of blood and tankage for fertilizing purposes. In Denmark country killing is being practiced on a co-operative basis in small country abattoirs, and the blood is carefully preserved.

Poisoned Bait For Cutworms.
Mix one pound of paris green with fifty pounds of bran or thirty-five of middlings. A spoonful put at the base of each plant will furnish protection for cabbage or tomatoes or other transplanted plants. Some prefer to wet the mixture with sweetened water.

Another method is to spray fresh new growth of clover or any other good succulent plant with one pound of paris green to twenty-five gallons of water. Then mow it and spread in little heaps about the field.

Care should be taken to prevent poultry from getting this poisoned bait. In the garden this may be easily accomplished by putting the bait under a board near the plants. This has the additional advantage of preventing the moist bait from drying out—Lowa Experiment Station.

HOGS AND MILK COWS.
All breeds of hogs look good when taken care of, and all of them will yield good money if rightly handled.

Frequent change to fresh pasture is one of the best ways to stimulate the growth of both the grass and the pigs. The mudhole is not a necessary adjunct to the hog pasture. The sanitary wallow that disinfests the hogs is the logical thing.

The pig, like every other young animal, loves to be alert and to be moving about with the freedom which belongs to such a nature.

If a hog misses a feed watch him. If he misses the second feed remove him from the herd and thoroughly disinfect where he has been.

The cows to be milked should have the choice of the best. They will be called upon to provide the cash which will keep the grocer paid up. But milk the cows giving the most milk. Those having been milked all summer should be allowed to rough it with the stock cattle. The milk cows should be given the best sleeping quarters that conditions will permit. The calves should have good care. Each mother will produce enough skim milk for her calf, but at the age of three weeks each calf should be eating a little grain.

Forceful, Anyway.
Mrs. Hoolihan—"This paper says there do be sermons in stone. Phwat d'yez think of that?" O'Hoolihan—"O' dunno about the sermons, but many a good arg-argument has come out av a brick. O'm thinkin'."

This action has been taken in compliance with the following request received by Captain Meagher:

Headquarters Tenth Infantry, N. G., N. Y.
Albany, April 29, 1914.
Captain Frank L. Meagher,
State Armory,
Kingston, N. Y.
My Dear Captain:

The colonel is very anxious under the existing circumstances to obtain for the regiment one of the Standard United States army 1½ ton trucks. From the viewpoint of the officers in the regular service and the division commander, an organization without an auto truck will be at a very great disadvantage. This vehicle will be used in connection with our wagon train for the benefit of the entire regiment in case of actual service or at any maneuvers to which the organization may be called, for the purpose of obtaining supplies from commissary depots, and in case water should not be available. It will be used for the transportation of same. They have proven their worth in the army and a movement is now on foot to equip all organizations.

Preparations have already been made to have a base in Mexico and at other points where large bodies of troops will be mobilized where repairs may be made to these trucks, gasoline supplied and at this base complete parts of this machine may be obtained.

The truck itself is equipped with an escort wagon body including bows and cover.

The army contract cost of this truck complete, delivered anywhere in the United States, is $2,700.

For the purchase of same it will be necessary for the regiment to raise this amount of money, and it is the sincere wish of Colonel Klein that each company commander outside of the city of Albany give some benefit at the armory in his charge, the proceeds of such benefit to be turned over to headquarters for this purpose. He feels that the time is ripe for raising the money in this way, and any event held at the various armories, given the proper amount of publicity, would probably bring sufficient amount to pay the initial cost of this truck. The citizens in general of the various towns in which the units of our regiment are located would probably be only too glad to attend a review or any other event, if it were known that the proceeds therefrom would be used for this purpose. It has also been suggested that there might be some citizens not connected with the organization who would be willing to subscribe at least a small sum for this purpose. At any rate the colonel wishes to assure all of the company commanders that their efforts in respect to raising this money will be personally appreciated by him.

The time for raising this money is right now, whether it be a review, a dance, an athletic event or any other event that may suggest itself to you, but it should be undertaken while the country is enthusiastic. It should also be remembered that every little bit helps, and the colonel sincerely hopes that every company commander will make immediate plans to carry out this project.

The four companies in Albany have already planned a big review to the commander in chief, and all justifiable means will be used to give the greatest amount of publicity to the purpose for which the receipts of the same will be used.

Will you be good enough to let me hear from you at once as to your intention in the matter?

With kindest personal regards, I am,

Very truly yours,
(Signed) GILBERT V. SCHENCK.

OUR SOLDIERS NEED A MOTOR TRUCK

So They Ask the People of Kingston to Help Them Raise the Money by Patronizing a Dance Next Monday Evening.

Company M will give a soiree and dance in the armory on Monday evening of next week for the purpose of raising money to aid in equipping the Tenth Regiment, of which it is a part, with an automobile truck. Captain Meagher has appointed a committee consisting of Lieutenants Carpenter and Kuehn and Sergeants Mullen, Fitzgerald and Dixon to solicit citizens to become patrons of the affair. This action has been taken in compliance with the following request received by Captain Meagher:

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 30.—The upward movement which has characterized the stock market at the opening every day this week was again in evidence in the initial trading today. Gains were scattered throughout the list and at the end of 30 minutes the tone had gained further strength. Canadian Pacific, after beginning at 196 1/4 for a gain of 1 1/4, increased its net advance to 1 1/2 upon the next few sales. Union Pacific began at 132 1/4 for a gain of 3/4 and at the end of fifteen minutes was selling at 133 1/4. There was further accumulation of Mexican Petroleum based upon the outlook for peace in Mexico. This issue commenced for a net advance of 2 1/2. Sale of New Central at 89 1/4, a gain. Within a few minutes its advance had passed one point. Strength in this stock was imparted by the action of the directors in directing the consolidation of the system. Among the other opening gains were: Amalgamated Copper, 1/4; Utah Copper, 3/4; Southern Pacific, 1/4; Reading, 1/4; Missouri Pacific, 1/4; Lehigh Valley, 1/4; Kansas City Southern, 1/4; B. F. Goodrich, 1/4; Ohio Copper, 1/4; B. & O., 1/4; American Smelting, 1/4; American Ice Securities, 1/4; and American Can, 1/4. Missouri Pacific, which suffered a bear attack yesterday, began 1/2 up but immediately lost its advance and scored a net decline. The curb was steady. Americans in London were irregular.

Noon.—The market strength developed in the late forenoon with many issues making substantial gains. New York Central moved up to 90 1/4 against 89 1/4 at the opening. Union Pacific, gained 1/4; U. S. Steel, 3/4. Canadian Pacific and Amalgamated Copper held firm. The Mexican issues were stronger. Call money loaning at 1 1/4. 2:30.—A number of issues shaded in the last hour but the undertone held firm. Considerable interest was manifested in the buying of Missouri Pacific, which sold at 167 1/4 for a net gain of 1/4 on the day. Amalgamated Copper sold at 71 1/4, the same price at which it opened. Steel shared to 57 1/4. Union Pacific held firm around 153 1/4. There was no wide movement in any stock.

The New York stock market closed steady. Governments unchanged, other bonds steady.

Tragedy of a Masked Ball

By MARGARET C. DEVEREAUX

The legend of one selling his soul to Satan was centuries old before Goethe took it for the theme of his immortal poem. Since the idea has been thus embodied it has been very popular in various forms. Soon after it appeared a masked ball in Staffhausen took place, at which a young girl named Catherine Hauser took the part of Marguerite. Herman Geiss, who was in love with her, learned through his sister that Catherine was intending to be thus costumed, and he took it into his head that he might press his suit under the guise of Faust. Carl Hauser, Catherine's brother, who was to escort her to the ball, was to go as Valentine.

Without knowing of the adoption of these costumes, Hans Ritter, a rival of Herman's, decided to attend the ball as Mephistopheles. It never came out whether Ritter in his action at the ball played a devilish part or, finding himself related by costume to the others who were all well known to him, thought it would be a fine thing to make bad blood between them, intending to undo what he had done before any trouble should arise from it.

Be this as it may, Herman Geiss no sooner saw a girl dressed as Marguerite than he asked her to dance with him and paid her marked attention for the rest of the evening. The ball was in full swing when Ritter, seeing Carl Hauser (Valentine) standing near a curtain, concealed himself behind it and hissed, "Look out for your sister; she is in danger."

Hauser looked around, but the room was crowded, and Ritter managed to escape without being detected. Carl was wrapped up in his sister and, being a hot blooded fellow, did not stop to consider that the words he had heard might have been a little performance aside, to make the attentions Faust was paying Marguerite more realistic. He did not know who Faust was, but proposed to stop his attentions to his sister. Going to the couple, who were in the midst of a dance, he ordered Catherine to come with him. Geiss, not knowing that he was her brother, pushed him away indignantly. Catherine remained with Geiss, and Hauser, going away, found a friend whom he sent to Geiss with a challenge. Hauser was at the time a student at a university, a member of a dueling corps and an expert with the small sword. When Geiss received the challenge he had left Catherine, and she knew nothing of what had happened.

Had each one of these persons known who the others were doubtless what followed would not have occurred. Another unfortunate feature was that Ritter, who had whispered the words that caused the trouble, had been drinking a good deal of German wine. Whether he thought the matter of no great importance, whether he forgot to take precautions against trouble liable to arise from what he had said, was not satisfactorily explained. There were those who believed that he had acted either through sheer malice or from a desire to injure Geiss in securing the hand of the girl he himself wanted.

After the ball Geiss and Hauser met in a forest near the town. There was a full moon, and they crossed swords by its light. Each wore the costume he had on at the ball. Those who claim that Ritter acted from malicious motives aver that he in the red and black costume of Mephistopheles witnessed the fight from behind the trunk of a tree, forming a perfect picture of the arch fiend watching the result of his devilish work.

Both the contestants were excellent swordsmen, but the light was very bad for such a trial of skill. Hauser was the better man at such work, but the light flashing on his enemy's sword bothered him. The result was determined by Geiss not seeing perfectly, for in trying to wing his opponent and thus end the duel without a tragedy he unintentionally stabbed his opponent in the heart.

Meanwhile the affair, so closely resembling the story of Faust and Marguerite, was talked about, and at the last moment a report of it reached Catherine's ears. She was getting ready for bed when she heard that a duel was about to take place and hurried at once to the place of the combat. When her brother fell she was still some distance from him, but, staggering on, reached him just in time for a last look between them before he died.

As soon as Hauser fell Geiss ran toward him, and in the face turned to the moonlight recognized Catherine's brother. He saw at once that he not only had taken a life, but a life that would forever prevent his winning the girl he loved. He was hurried away from the ground, and the next morning before daylight left Staffhausen for America. He wrote a pathetic letter to Catherine bemoaning what he had done and saying that his life was from that moment blighted.

Catherine did not marry, and Geiss was never again heard from after he left for America. There was no satisfactory explanation as to how the tragedy was brought about except that Hauser told his seconds of the warning he had received and the repulse given him when he tried to get his sister away from Geiss. Ritter was bitterly condemned and his excuses were not accepted. His treatment by his former friends was such that at last he disappeared and was never again seen at Staffhausen.

For One Of
of Another

by F. A. MITCHEL

The wild and woolly west was from a condition answering to the one of civilization, many failures in the substitution of law for the more drastic of Judge Lynch. There is a New Mexico called Worthington, a courthouse of which is now being erected. Many of the citizens of Worthington remember when there was no courthouse and no court in the town. They can also tell you of the first attempt to displace Judge Lynch and establish a court.

It had been pretty well established under the judge, whose decisions were swift and sure, and some of the most prominent citizens thought that had arrived when a regular court might be established, not for the better and horse thieves especially, but for the settlement of disputed claims connected with property. So a committee worked out the problem, organized a court, elected a judge and at least for a couple of recent graduates from a law school—the one to be the prosecuting attorney, the other to represent these having cases.

The desperadoes in that region on the other hand, were not disposed to displace Judge Lynch by a court of law. They were frequent, and the town, having been used with Judge Lynch and ordered a court, found itself paralyzed when the two. However, after much discussion, the first trial came off, and Jim Bunker, having shot down and killed a man, was tried in cold blood, was found guilty before the regularly constituted court.

The first witness was a young girl who had seen the shooting. Counsel for the defense objected to her testimony on the ground that she was underage. The point being referred to Judge, he adjourned the court till the next day in order to look the matter up.

That night there was another shooting.

The next morning court opened, and Judge admitted the girl's testimony. But counsel for defense badgered her to admit that at the hour of the shooting she was in bed buried under the cover and could not see anyone.

A man who had been nearly killed by one of the bullets fired by the prisoner at the man who was murdered, proved to be cross eyed, and was unable for him to tell which was the other. A woman who was carrying a bucket of water from the well, hearing the firing, had looked in the direction from which it came.

In a few minutes more saw the prisoner walking away from his victim who lay on the ground weltering in blood. Counsel for defense objected that the ear is not capable of determining the direction of sound and the woman had been drinking at the time of the shooting.

The jury was much perplexed by all testimony, which was proved to be worthless before a court of law. They knew the witnesses were telling truth while the attorney for the prisoner proved that they were lying.

The prisoner, who had no fear of conviction by a regular court, guffawed at the time his counsel broke down the only of the witness for the prosecution.

"Bunker," said the judge severely, "you do that again I'll adjourn court and try you before a court of law."

The threat was quite enough to cause the prisoner to restrain himself, and the argument was not again heard in court.

The prosecutor summed up the case, the testimony was all in, but all witnesses having proved useless.

The jury was obliged to direct the attention of the court to the prisoner's personal appearance as indicating that he would commit murder than eat. This had no effect on the jury.

The jury were not as good looking as Bunker. The prosecutor was by counsel for defense, who by a thrilling speech picturing the fate of Bunker's mother on seeing she had nursed as a babe.

The judge was reminded by counsel for defense that he must instruct the jury to find in accordance with the evidence, and when the judge asked for other lawyer present, the prosecutor, if this was correct, he felt to admit that it was. So the judge gave his instructions in accordance with the evidence, and the jury retired to a back room for consultation.

Not long before they returned with a verdict, which was announced by the foreman as follows:

"In accordance with your honor's instructions we find that Jim Bunker is proven to have done the deed of the killing, but 'cause he is the proceedin's we find him contempt of court."

The judge looked nonplused at this and was about to apply to the jury for their opinion when the foreman spoke up:

"We find the verdict, your honor, I find that we order that the law be with due respect, the prisoner is over to a committee to imprisonment for contempt of court."

The first rate law, replied the gentlemen of the late vigilance committee, the prisoner is thirty minutes Bunker was to a tree.

For One Of and Convict- of Another

the wild and woolly west was from a condition answering to the one of civilisation, many failures in the substation of law for the more drastic of Judge Lynch. There is a new Mexico called Worthington, the courthouse of which is now an edifice. Many of the citizens of Worthington remember when there was no courthouse and no court one. They can also tell you of the first attempt to displace Judge Lynch and establish order.

It had been pretty well understood under the judge, whose decisions were swift and sure, and some of the most prominent citizens thought that he had arrived when a regular court might be established, not for the sake of the law, but for the sake of the law and horse thieves especially, for the settlement of disputed property connected with property. So a committee worked out the problem, organized a court, elected a judge and sent out for a couple of recent graduates from a law school—the one to be prosecuting attorney, the other to represent these having cases.

The desperadoes in that region on the day that Worthington was to displace its cases by a court of law and into the town. Shootings were frequent, and the town, having been used with Judge Lynch and ordered a court, found itself paralyzed between the two. However, after much the first trial came off, and Jim Bunker, having shot down and killed Whistler in cold blood, was taken before the regularly constituted judge.

The first witness was a young girl who had seen the shooting. Counsel for the defense objected to her testimony on the ground that she was under the influence of the judge. The point being referred to the judge, he adjourned the court till the next day in order to look the matter over.

That night there was another shooting.

The next morning court opened, and the judge admitted the girl's testimony. But counsel for defense badgered her to admit that at the hour of the shooting she was in bed buried under the cover and could not see anything. A man who had been nearly killed by one of the bullets fired by the man who was murdered, proved to be cross-eyed, and was unable for him to tell which of the other. A woman who was carrying a bucket of water from the well, hearing the firing, had looked in the direction from which it came, a few minutes more saw the man walking away from his victim, lay on the ground weltering in blood. Counsel for defense said that the ear is not capable of pointing the direction of sound and the woman had been drinking at the time of the shooting.

The judge was much perplexed by all this testimony, which was proved to be untrue before a court of law. The witnesses were telling truth while the attorney for the prisoner proved that they were lying. The prisoner, who had no fear of counsel by a regular court, guffawed at the time his counsel broke down the money of the witness for the prosecution.

"Bunker," said the judge severely, "you do that again I'll adjourn court and try you before a committee."

The threat was quite enough to cause the prisoner to restrain himself, and the argument was not again heard in the courtroom.

The prosecutor summed up the case, the testimony was all in, but all the witnesses having proved useless, he was obliged to direct the attention of the jury to the prisoner's personal appearance as indicating that he would commit murder than eat. "This man had no effect on the jury, whom were not as good looking as Bunker. The prosecutor was rebuffed by counsel for defense, who was thrilling speech picturing the mother on seeing the verdict, which was announced as follows:

"In accordance with your honor's instructions we find that Jim Bunker has been proved to have done the deed. We therefore find him guilty of the killing, but 'cause he is the proceedin's we find him in contempt of court."

The judge looked nonplused at this and was about to apply to the lawyers for their opinion when he spoke up:

"In the verdict, your honor, I find that we order that the law be with due respect, the prisoner over to a committee to imprisonment for contempt of court."

"First rate law," replied the gentlemen of the late vigilance committee, the prisoner is thirty minutes Bunker was a tree.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, April 30.—Twenty-five cent baseball seems to be disappearing from the major league parks. Just now it is a case of "if you haven't got four bits you needn't come around."

Until a few years ago when most of the club owners in the American and National Leagues began constructing new stands, there were many 25 cent seats. But since then they have been growing scarcer and scarcer. The old bleacher area in most of the parks has been cut into three parts, the two nearest the home plate selling for 50 cents, and only the little stretch that is farthest away from the plate being allotted to the 25 cent fans.

The rules of the big leagues provide for 25 cent seats, but they do not specify the number. Because of that little error that would protect the 25 cent fans that the magnates have reduced the bleacher seats from numbers far into the thousands to numbers in the hundreds.

Frank Hinkley, the Yale coach, rushed into print today with the announcement that next fall there will be a "definite system" of coaching the gridiron warriors.

"It seems from what I can learn," said Hinkley, that players in the past few seasons at Yale have suffered from contradictory coaching. By that I mean that one coach would tell a player to do this and the next coach would come along and tell him coach would do it, but to do something else. Then would come a third coach who would countermand the order of the other two, leaving the player in a sort of befuddled condition.

"I hope to inaugurate a system of definite coaching that will not confuse a player. I'm not planning to use the candidates for the team as a bunch of checkers to be moved about through directions from the side lines. I want brainy players in the 1914 eleven, and when I get them I'm going to leave the running of the game pretty much to them."

In times of illness, Chief Bender, the great Indian pitcher of the Athletics forgets the veneer of civilization and goes back to the Indian ways.

Bender spurns the services of a physician when he is sick, takes no medicine, but simply hies himself away and doesn't come back until he is well again.

A short time after Bender joined the Athletics, he was taken ill. Connie Mack wanted to have a physician attend the twirler, but Bender shook his head.

"I'm sick, but I don't need medicine," he said.

Connie left Bender's room for a little while, and when he returned he was surprised to find that the Chief had slipped out. Inquiries failed to locate him, and when Bender didn't show up that night or the next day Connie became worried.

For two nights and two days the search was made for Bender, but to no avail. He couldn't be found. By this time Connie was almost frantic. Just when he was about to send out a general alarm for his missing Indian star, he decided to take another look into Bender's room, and there he found him huddled up in bed.

"Where have you been?" demanded Mack.

"Sick," answered Bender.

"But you haven't been in your room at the hotel," said Mack. "Were you at a hospital?"

"No, I went away where I was quiet and where I could be alone," replied Bender. "When an Indian is sick he doesn't want any noise around, and he doesn't want medicine or doctors. He just wants to let nature take its course in curing him."

HIGHLAND.

Highland, April 30.—Mrs. Pierce entertained guests last week at her bungalow from out of town.

Mr. Schoonmaker of New York spent some time recently on Vineyard avenue with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelsey Staples and Mrs. Dickerson, Mrs. Staples' mother, will vacate the rooms on Vineyard avenue for rooms in the Rose house on upper Main street.

Mrs. E. Sundstrom left this place over a week ago and is now running a boarding house in Poughkeepsie. F. S. Decker of Catskill and Mrs. B. B. Harper of Clintondale were guests several days this week of Cant. and Mrs. R. H. Decker.

The churches last Sunday were well filled, although raining the greater portion of the day. Many braved the storm and listened to good sermons and music.

George Upright is the owner of a fine new Buick automobile. He is very sporty now and we want to have a ride in this car. So don't forget your friends, George.

Women all through the village are now getting ready to clean house and all are anxious for fires to go out and get ready to enjoy the good old summer time, with hammocks and swings and to once again enjoy the famous porch.

People are now thinking of the boat crews and boat races which all draw large crowds. Mrs. Mack of Grand street will have one crew. They know where to go to be well looked after. She has a very attractive place and has the reputation of having a fine table which suits every one, for all desire to have the inner man catered to. She has the reputation of keeping a first class house and catering to first class people. That is the only road to success. Her new bungalow is fast nearing completion.

Mr. and Mrs. George Evert of Maple avenue entertained their niece from Kingston last week.

Mrs. Herman Dobbs has been ill, but at present is much improved.

People are busy getting ground ready for making garden. If the weather gets warm now we will see many industrious men. We wish the state road fellows would get to business for every one wants to see work commenced and then finished, for it is rough to have a road in the condition of the one from the village to the river.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Eckert of Wilcox avenue went to Rifton Tuesday to visit Mrs. Lovelace. She is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Eckert. They went by automobile. Mrs. Lovelace has been quite ill for some time, but is somewhat improved at present.

District deputy and assistant grand lecturer of the 11th district, O. E. S., will officially visit Highland Chapter on June 1. Members from Catskill, Saugerties and Poughkeepsie will be the guests of this chapter.

David Merritt of the north road, was a business visitor in Kingston last week.

Frank Simpson has been in Montgomery on business a few days. He is a very busy fellow.

We heard from Mr. and Mrs. George Gandy a few days ago. They are enjoying their trip and when heard from were in Portland, Oregon. This trip will be remembered by them as one of the grand affairs in the 1914 year.

Lew Thorn was a visitor in Esopus Sunday.

Capt. R. H. Decker was in Poughkeepsie Tuesday.

Bertha Dimsey was in Lloyd on Sunday.

Mrs. Lacey is visiting relatives in Albany this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Aldrich are located in their new home on Milton avenue and are ready to receive their friends.

Miss Kelsey is in New York for a few days.

Several of our young boys will be employed at Lake Mohonk this summer.

Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Plass and Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Decker were in Newburgh.

Nellie Steller is employed at a hotel in Atlantic City. Some of her people and friends visited her for the week end and they enjoyed the trip and resort greatly.

The Grange people initiated Philip Wilcox and wife, John Schuhle at their last meeting. Gertrude Feeter presented her resignation as lecturer.

Blanche Constable is at home after being in Vassar hospital a short time for throat trouble. She has been benefited greatly by this.

Mr. and Mrs. Fisher of Vineyard avenue have been in Milton, being called there on account of the illness of Mr. Fisher's mother. All hope for her speedy recovery.

Dr. and Mrs. Blakely were in Milton one day this week.

Mrs. Martin Upright spent some time in Clintondale the past week. She is to be one of our high school teachers in the fall.

Mrs. J. W. Blakely, the noted musician of Highland, gave to her pupils an afternoon of pleasure recently. The young students were given the opportunity of writing composers' names that they were familiar with, in a certain time limit, and prizes were awarded the lucky ones. Then they displayed their ability by playing solos, trios and duets. All were finely rendered, and the young son of the doctor and wife sang three selections, which were just as pleasing and cute as could be, and everyone enjoyed it very much. There were mandolin selections by Mildred Clearwater and Pearl Cashdollar and at the conclusion Mrs. Blakely served to all dainty refreshments. The pupils declared they spent a delightful musical afternoon with their teacher.

The next Grange meeting, May 5, will be quite interesting. Home industry will be the topic and Mr. and Mrs. Austin Merritt will interest all by giving a talk on raising tomatoes. They are doing fine along the line of this work and certainly put up quantities of the tomatoes for market and we can vouch for their being first class.

One more society organized in our up-to-date place, the Boy Scouts, and report states in the near future an order of "Camp Fire Girls" will be among the organized societies. Let the good work go on.

Sol. Carpenter will move his law office from present place to rooms in the DeGraft building.

Mrs. Fred Miller of New York city has been spending some time here with her mother, Mrs. Almira Freer, on Main street.

Mrs. J. C. Dedrick of New York city, who was the guest of Captain and Mrs. R. H. Decker the past week, returned to the city Friday.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

New York, April 30.—Twenty-five cent baseball seems to be disappearing from the major league parks. Just now it is a case of "if you haven't got four bits you needn't come around."

Until a few years ago when most of the club owners in the American and National Leagues began constructing new stands, there were many 25 cent seats. But since then they have been growing scarcer and scarcer. The old bleacher area in most of the parks has been cut into three parts, the two nearest the home plate selling for 50 cents, and only the little stretch that is farthest away from the plate being allotted to the 25 cent fans.

The rules of the big leagues provide for 25 cent seats, but they do not specify the number. Because of that little error that would protect the 25 cent fans that the magnates have reduced the bleacher seats from numbers far into the thousands to numbers in the hundreds.

Frank Hinkley, the Yale coach, rushed into print today with the announcement that next fall there will be a "definite system" of coaching the gridiron warriors.

"It seems from what I can learn," said Hinkley, that players in the past few seasons at Yale have suffered from contradictory coaching. By that I mean that one coach would tell a player to do this and the next coach would come along and tell him not to do it, but to do something else. Then would come a third coach who would countermand the order of the other two, leaving the player in a sort of befuddled condition.

"I hope to inaugurate a system of definite coaching that will not confuse a player. I'm not planning to use the candidates for the team as a bunch of checkers to be moved about through directions from the side lines. I want brainy players in the 1914 eleven, and when I get them I'm going to leave the running of the game pretty much to them."

In times of illness, Chief Bender, the great Indian pitcher of the Athletics forgets the veneer of civilization and goes back to the Indian ways.

Bender spurns the services of a physician when he is sick, takes no medicine, but simply hies himself away and doesn't come back until he is well again.

A short time after Bender joined the Athletics, he was taken ill. Connie Mack wanted to have a physician attend the twirler, but Bender shook his head.

"I'm sick, but I don't need medicine," he said.
Connie left Bender's room for a little while, and when he returned he was surprised to find that the Chief had slipped out. Inquiries failed to locate him, and when Bender didn't show up that night or the next day Connie became worried.

For two nights and two days the search was made for Bender, but to no avail. He couldn't be found. By this time Connie was almost frantic. Just when he was about to send out a general alarm for his missing Indian star, he decided to take another look into Bender's room, and there he found him huddled up in bed.

"Where have you been?" demanded Mack.

"Sick," answered Bender.

"But you haven't been in your room at the hotel," said Mack. "Were you at the hotel?"
"No, I went away where I was quiet and where I could be alone," replied Bender. "When an Indian is sick he doesn't want any noise around, and he doesn't want medicine or doctors. He just wants to let nature take its course in curing him."

HIGHLAND.

Highland, April 30.—Mrs. Pierce entertained guests last week at her bungalow from out of town.

Mr. Schoonmaker of New York spent some time recently on Vineyard avenue with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelsey Staples and Mrs. Dickerson, Mrs. Staples's mother, will vacate the rooms on Vineyard avenue for rooms in the Rose house on upper Main street.

Mrs. E. Sundstrom left this place over a week ago and is now running a boarding house in Poughkeepsie. F. S. Decker of Catskill and Mrs. B. B. Harper of Clintondale were guests several days this week of Cant. and Mrs. R. H. Decker.

The churches last Sunday were well filled, although raining the greater portion of the day. Many braved the storm and listened to good sermons and music.

George Upright is the owner of a fine new Buick automobile. He is very sporty now and we want to have a ride in this car. So don't forget your friends, George.

Women all through the village are now getting ready to clean house and all are anxious for fires to go out and get ready to enjoy the good old summer time, with hammocks and swings and to once again enjoy the famous porch.

People are now thinking of the boat crews and boat races which always draw large crowds. Mrs. Mack of Grand street will have one crew. They know where to go to be well looked after. She has a very attractive place and has the reputation of having a fine table which suits every one, for all desire to have the inner man catered to. She has the reputation of keeping a first class house and catering to first class people. That is the only road to success. Her new bungalow is fast nearing completion.

Mr. and Mrs. George Eyett of Maple avenue entertained their niece from Kingston last week.
Mrs. Herman Dobbs has been ill, but at present is much improved.
People are busy getting ground ready for making garden. If the weather gets warm now we will see many industrious men. We wish the state road fellows would get to business for every one wants to see work commenced and then finished, for it is rough to have a road in the condition of the one from the village to the river.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Eckert of Wilcox avenue went to Rifton Tuesday to visit Mrs. Lovelace. She is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Eckert. They went by automobile. Mrs. Lovelace has been quite ill for some time, but is somewhat improved at present.

District deputy and assistant grand lecturer of the 11th district, O. E. S., will officially visit Highland Chapter on June 1. Members from Catskill, Saugerties and Poughkeepsie will be the guests of said chapter.

David Merritt of the north road, was a business visitor in Kingston last week.
Frank Simpson has been in Montgomery on business a few days. He is a very busy fellow.

We heard from Mr. and Mrs. George Gandy a few days ago. They are enjoying their trip and when heard from were in Portland, Oregon. This trip will be remembered by them as one of the grand affairs in the 1914 year.

Lew Thorn was a visitor in Esopus Sunday.

Capt. R. H. Decker was in Poughkeepsie Tuesday.

Bertha Dimsey was in Lloyd on Sunday.

Mrs. Lacey is visiting relatives in Albany this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Aldrich are located in their new home on Milton avenue and are ready to receive their friends.

Miss Kelsey is in New York for a few days.

Several of our young boys will be employed at Lake Mohonk this summer.

Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Plass and Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Decker were in Newburgh.

Nellie Steller is employed at a hotel in Atlantic City. Some of her people and friends visited her for the week end and they enjoyed the trip and resort greatly.

The Grange people initiated Philip Wilklow and wife, and John Schuile at their last meeting. Gertrude Feeter presented her resignation as lecturer.

Blanche Constable is at home after being in Vassar hospital a short time for throat trouble. She has been benefited greatly by this.

Mr. and Mrs. Fisher of Vineyard avenue have been in Milton being called there on account of the illness of Mr. Fisher's mother. All hope for her speedy recovery.

Dr. and Mrs. Blakely were in Milton one day this week.

Mrs. Martin Upright spent some time in Clintondale the past week. She is to be one of our high school teachers in the fall.

Mrs. J. W. Blakely, the noted musician of Highland, gave to her pupils an afternoon of pleasure recently. The young students were given the opportunity of writing composers' names that they were familiar with, in a certain time limit, and prizes were awarded the lucky ones. Then they displayed their ability by playing solos, trios and duets. All were finely rendered, and the young son of the doctor and wife sang pleasing and cute as could be, and everyone enjoyed it very much.

There were mandolin selections by Mildred Clearwater and Pearl Cashdollar and at the conclusion Mrs. Blakely served to all dainty refreshments. The pupils declared they spent a delightful musical afternoon with their teacher.

The next Grange meeting, May 5, will be quite interesting. Home industry will be the topic and Mr. and Mrs. Austin Merritt will interest all by giving a talk on raising tomatoes. They are doing fine along the line of this work and certainly put up quantities of the tomatoes for market and we can vouch for their being first class.

One more society organized in our up-to-date place, the Boy Scouts, and reports state in the near future an order of "Camp Fire Girls" will be among the organized societies. Let the good work go on.

Sol. Carpenter will move his law office from present place to rooms in the DeGraff building.

Mrs. Fred Miller of New York city has been spending some time here with her mother, Mrs. Almira Freer, on Main street.

Mrs. J. C. Dedrick of New York city, who was the guest of Captain and Mrs. R. H. Decker the past week, returned to the city Friday.
